Hiram Johnson's Victory
The Country Is All Right
Legless Mr. Malone
Peter Manning's Record

By Arthur Brisbane

HIRAM JOHNSON'S victory in California is good news for the whole country, which needs such men in the Senate. It does not surprise anybody that knows California. A state progressive in everything else, going forward in a thousand directions, could be nothing but progressive in thinking and voting.

The people of California believe in government for the people of the whole country. And Hiram Johnson represents that belief.

Nothing the matter with this country, says Judge Gary of the big steel company. "The fault is in individuals." Correct, and the chief fault in individuals applies to 90 per cent of them. They devote thought to everything except the MOST IMPORTANT THING, their VOTE. Dependent on laws, they allow politicians, usually self-selected lawyers, to do the governing and make laws for them. Men that have no experience, special training or executive ability, climb into the most important seats. When individuals vote intelligently the nation will have fewer troubles.

A new beggar, "Stump" Malone, is prosperous in private life. Having no legs he travels the sidewalks sitting on a board with four little wheels, pushing with his hands. At home he has artificial legs and fine clothes, also an automobile and a chauffeur. It is said he collects $100 a day from charitable people. The newspapers write about it, quite excited.

"Stump" Malone's gifts are voluntary, in each case the giver enjoys a pleasant thrill of self approval, worth the money.

Newspapers might pay attention to some other collectors, the corporations practicing "taxation without representation," about which our ancestors got so excited and which we take so calmly. Any one of a dozen corporations takes out of the public in a minute more than legless Mr. Malone can collect in a year.

Peter Manning has broken a trotting record. Before you could buy, for one-tenth the price of a good trotter, an automobile that would [illegible] any trotter on earth, the news that a horse trotted in 1 minute 59¾ [illegible] would have been great news.

Now it amounts to nothing. You [illegible] very old to remember the excitement about Maud S. Old William H. Vanderbilt, with the [illegible] whiskers, thought more of her than he did about the New York Central railroad.

Now it wouldn't amount to anything if a horse trotted a mile in half a minute. He can only keep it up for one mile. You can get an automobile that will go all day long, nicely and steadily, thirty-five miles an hour. And at night you don't have to stay up grooming it, feeding it, bedding it down. Once the fast horse was an important part of civilization. Now, like the greyhound in England, he is simply a tool of professional gamblers.

Nellie Grant is dead. That has meaning only for people with gray hair. Many old soldiers that went to Grant's inauguration in 1872 remember his only daughter, then a girl of fifteen with curly [illegible]. She was married in the White House to an Englishman, Sartoris. She died the wife of Franklin [illegible] Jones, a Chicago banker.

Nearly all those to whom the name Grant meant much, had died before her. That name now is part of history that little boys and girls learn in school. The world moves along rapidly and forgets.

[illegible] one man to whom "Nancy Hanks" means the mother of Lincoln there are ten to whom it [illegible] the name of a trotting [illegible].

[illegible] Lascelles, nobody in particular except that he married the daughter of the English [illegible], kicked in the chest, very [illegible] by a race horse. He "im[illegible] reassures the Princess." [illegible] newspapers of the world [illegible] put the great news [illegible] on the front page. [illegible] more than they did with the forty-eight men trapped in the California mine, now [illegible] or choked to death. [illegible] counts in this world, [illegible] democracies.

[illegible] Miller wants New York to celebrate the Marne victory September 6. A good idea, [illegible] many have forgotten exactly what the Marne victory was. [illegible] would be pleased if we had [illegible] victory of our own to celebrate, for instance, a victory over [illegible] and railroad difficulties, [illegible] beginning of continuous [illegible].

WEATHER

The highest temperature during the last 24 hours was 81 degrees [illegible] and the lowest, 69, at 6 [illegible]. The sun sets at 6:33. Thundershowers occurred yesterday [illegible] in the north west [illegible] Montana to Michigan. Over [illegible] of rain fell in Williston, N. [illegible] and rain also fell on the Atlantic coast. Warmer weather continues in the lake region and the Mississippi valley. It is cooler in the Rocky mountains.

Anti-Saloon League Flirts With Bankers

Ask Cash To Fight 'Radicals'

Letter Is Sent Out to Bankers; "We Get Results," Says League

BY WILLIAM T. EVJUE

The Capital Times has just come into possession of a letter sent out by the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League to the bankers of the state, asking for funds to be used by the Anti-Saloon League to fight "wet radicalism."

The Anti-Saloon League and the Committee of 44 have been deluging the state of Wisconsin in the last ten days with literature in a way that is unparalleled in political campaigns in this state. From every part of Wisconsin, readers of the Capital Times are sending in expensive literature that is being received in all parts of the state from the Anti-Saloon League and the Committee of 44. In many instances, it is reported that the Anti-Saloon League and the Committee of 44 literature is being distributed in the same envelope.

The letter of the Anti-Saloon League makes a direct bid for money from the bankers on the appeal "that the Anti-Saloon League is a result getter" and flirts further with the bankers' money by intimating to them that "wet radicalism menaces the home and every honest business."

The introduction of the letter follows:

"Because your mode and means of living will be vitally affected by the results of the primary election, September 5, you are interested in knowing what candidates result-getting organizations are backing."

The letter in closing says:

"The fight must be made and at once. Nobody else has the organization or the lists to make it. We have both; together with experienced campaign directors, both men and women. History proves we get results, but results cost money.

"We need $12,000 to pay postage paper, printing, envelopes, addressing and mailing 200,000 letters with enclosures. May we ask you to send us a special campaign contribution?"

The letter is signed by J. I. Seder, associate state superintendent.

That at least $100,000 has been spent for literature in behalf of the candidates of the committee of 44 were estimates made by political leaders here today. It is said that the Committee of 44 is using polling lists throughout the state and that the item of postage alone will reach $15,000. In each envelope sent out, are from seven to eight different pieces of literature. Part of this literature is two-color work, which is very expensive.

Money for this deluge of printing and literature has been raised in the state in the last two weeks. Meetings of big manufacturers have been held throughout the state and assessments have been levied on each county. It is said that over $100,000 has been raised in this way.

Make First Payment On Big Bond Issue

Paying off of interest and principal on water improvement bonds and the East Side High school bond issue is being made through the city auditors office today.

Principal of $3,000 on the $60,000 bond issue of 1920 for the plant with $3,420 in interest was paid. Payment of $10,000 also was made on the principal of the 1921 East Side High school bond issue. Interest paid on this issue amounted to $11,000. All payments were dated Sept. 1.

Road Work Continues In Spite of Handicap

"In spite of the diversion of cars to the coal fields by the railroad companies, greatly limiting the operations of the cement companies, the 427 mile concrete highway outlined for 1922, is moving along rapidly," said G. P. Daggett, assistant engineer of construction yesterday. "At least 300 miles of the 427 mile program will be completed this fall."

Says Johnson Using State Help, Supplies

Solomon Levitan Makes Charges Against the State Treasurer

JEFFERSON, Wis.—Exhibiting a certified copy of the official record signed by Henry Johnson, state treasurer, Soloman Levitan today charged that the present state treasurer was using state help, state supplies and state stationary in at least part of his campaign. Mr. Levitan showed a departmental requisition dated August 24, 1922, signed by Henry Johnson for mimeograph copies of a two page political letter for public distribution to be printed on state stationery, the work done by state employees. This letter is a criticism of Mr. Levitan who is a candidate for Mr. Johnson's job and is an attempted reply to Gov. Blaine's tax collection program.

"In Mr. Johnson's letter the present treasurer says, 'I like to make myself believe that the state has been built up to what it is today either through dishonesty in business or taxes'", said Mr. Levitan. "What irony! Johnson says one thing and does another. I am making no charges but that statement of Henry Johnson's and his use of state employees and state materials in his campaign certainly does not match up with his high sounding campaign statements.

"Referring to me, Mr. Johnson says, 'People who live in glass houses should not throw stones.' My reply s that a public official who is a candidate for office should not use materials bought by taxpayer's money.

"I have another affidavit which shows that Henry Johnson is using the state's mail, official in character, to carry his campaign literature. Miss Lutie E. Stearns, Milwaukee, member of the state board of normal regents, in a sworn statement, declares that 'On the 24th day of August, 1922, I received a draft for my expenses as a member of the board of normal regents. Said envelope contained a campaign card of Henry Johnson's with his platform and laudatory statements.'

"When any man finds it necessary to conduct such a campaign he should not be permitted to continue in office."

Roundup Terrorists In Railroad Bomb Plots

Woman Hurt As Car Turns Turtle

Julius Moehlman 2021 Russel st., and his wife, narrowly escaped serious injury on the McFarland road at 5:30 yesterday afternoon when a rear wheel of the Ford car, in which they were riding, came off while the auto was going down a hill near the contagious hospital, rendering the brakes of the car useless and sending it hurtling down the steep roadway and into a ditch at the foot.

Mrs. Moehlman was cut about the face and neck by the flying glass from the windshield and Mr. Moehlman was bruised as the car left the road and turned over in a nearby ditch. Three wheels were torn off the car and the windshield was broken.

Neither Mr. or Mrs. Moehlman are in a serious condition, according to the attending physician.

Reveal Alleged Plan To Kill Three Road Heads

CHICAGO — Police and federal operatives launched a vigorous drive here today against radicals and terrorists believed to be behind railroad wreck and bomb plot. The roun-up began with the arrest of a man charged with bombing the homes of two workers in the Illinois Central shops at Burnside.

Activities here followed 24 hours of increasing disorders, bridge burning and dynamiting of railroad property throughout the country.

With a defense fund being raised by labor organizations, attorneys for the four men held at Gary, Ind., on charges of wrecking the Michigan Central's "Million Dollar Express" on August 20, began a legal fight for the release of the prisoners. Three of the men who signed alleged confessions, repudiated them, declaring the confessions were made to save them from further abuse by the police.

Breaking into the house of Michael Krischuman early Friday, police found him hiding in a corner and as they started away to lock him up pending questioning in connection with the bombings at Burnside, the house was rocked by an explosion six doors away. Hurrying to the scene they found the front of a house occupied by D. Merrick, an Illinois Central employe, demolished by a bomb.

Disclosures of an alleged plot to kill three railroad presidents or kidnap members of their families were made during the investigation of radical activities today.

Mrs. Mary Fleckenstein, South Brooks street, has been critically ill at St. Mary's hospital and is slightly improved.

Police Fail To Gain Trace of D'Amico Killer

WEALTHY GROCER VICTIM OF PLOT

Volley of Bullets Pierce Man's Body Through window; wife is Prostrated; Police Find Shot Gun Near Scene

VAINLY striving to pierce the cloud of mystery hanging over the murder of James D'Amico, wealthy Italian merchant, in his store at 16 S. Murray st., last night, police today redoubled their efforts to apprehend the slayer or slayers who escaped in the street maze of "Little Italy" without leaving a clue except the shotgun which was used to bring death to the tradesman. D'Amico was shot in the back as he sat on a window ledge in the front of his store shortly before 9 o'clock. He died almost instantly, giving no hint of the identity of his assassins.

The death of D'Amico, one of the best-known and popular residents of the Italian colony, who was known as a man of wealth, is the result of a ruthless underworld feud, which caused the death of his brother a month ago in Chicago at the hands of unknown gunmen, under similar circumstances.

Angelo D'Amico, the brother, was killed in his saloon in Chicago by shots fired by men from the outside. As in the murder last night, a double-barreled shotgun was found outside the building.

In the hope of shedding light on the history of the vendetta which has cost the lives of the two brothers, police detectives were to question Peter D'Amico, surviving brother, who arrived from Chicago today at word of the death of the local merchant.

Efforts of newspaper men to gain information from Peter were unavailing this afternoon. Stoically denying that he had knowledge of the inner workings of the plot which has resulted in the death of two members of his family, he preserved the silence characteristic of the victims of the old-world vendetta, which has been transplanted in new and more terrible form, to America.

Friends and relatives of the dead man, cowed by the tragedy, sit in knots in Greenbush, hardly daring to discuss the slaying, fearful of the vengeance that is visited upon those of their nationality who "squeal."

Four large slugs from the shotgun, any one of which would have caused the death of D'Amico, entered his back, according to Coroner W. E. Campbell. In addition, scores of small shot pierced the flesh.

The coroner's jury which will hold the inquest into the killing, was sworn in today at Schroeder's undertaking parlors, where the body was taken. Members are: F. R. Devendorf, H. H. Morgan, O. S. Jacobson, J. A. Taylor, E. C. Smith, and Gerhard Scott.

The inquest was postponed indefinitely pending further developments in the investigation.

What may be a new clew to the murder was revealed this afternoon when it was learned that an Elgin automobile bearing an Illinois license was seen in the vicinity of the slain man's store yesterday afternoon, disappearing early in the evening. It was seen again this morning traveling at a high rate of speed through the Italian settlement with a Wisconsin license, it is said. Officials are attempting to learn the identity of the owner of the car.

The murdered man had been sitting on the ledge talking to his partner in the store, Philip Arnao, when the shooting occurred, Arnao said later. The latter was in the rear part of the room, and there were no patrons in the place. Suddenly shots rang out simultaneous with the crack of glass.

"Oh, My God," cried the stricken man as he reeled forward. He top-

Girl Held As Sheik Departs

Parents Demand Police Hold Daughter As Train Leaves

"The Sheik" has departed.

Shaking the dust of Madison, where officers of the law hailed him into court on the charge of fortune-telling without a license, disdaining his pleas that he was teaching "the new truth," from his slippered feet and his gaily colored pantaloons and turban, "Rajah Habindaramath Lemma" took a night train to the north last night.

But a 19 year-old university co-ed, who had been lured by roseate dreams of a stage career and fame as a writer to attempt to accompany the "Apostle of Truth" on his journey, languishes in the Madison police station, rebellious at the stern arm of the law and the demands of her parents that she remain in Madison.

The girl, whose name is being withheld by The Capital Times in consideration for the girl and her parents, was taken from a Pullman car of the Northwestern train to Minneapolis last night, by Patrolman Burmeister and her father as the train bearing her and the "Sheik" was about to pull out.

Prominent Madison women, are said to have been followers of the man.

Queries resulting from the Sheik's claim that he graduated from the University of Ohio in 1896 brought replies that no record of his attending school could be found.

"Rajah Lemma" told attendants at the hotel where he had made his headquarters that he could be found at the Curtis hotel, Minneapolis. He was allowed to depart unmolested by police.

The "Sheik" was fined $25 and costs in Junior Superior court a week ago on the charge of practicing clairvoyancy wthout a license. He threatened to appeal the case, but suddenly changed his mind yesterday and paid his fine.

The girl met the "Sheik" three weeks ago when having her fortune told as a lark, her father told The Capital Times. The Sheik told her that she had talent for writing and offered to "assist" her in realizing on it, according to his story.

"We tried to persuade her that it was folly to listen to his blandishments but we could not make her see the light" he said. "Then several days ago she seemed to acquiesce to our wishes and agreed to complete here university course."

"Last night when I came home, I found that she had gone and that her bags were missing. Suspecting that she intended to leave the city, I went to the Northwestern train and sought her in the cars. She turned a deaf ear to my entreaties.

"I called Patrolman Burmeister and we took her to the station."

All Roads May Ask Receivers Asserts Judge

May Seek to Become Wards of U. S. For Protection

CHICAGO — A petition for a receivership for the Chicago and Alton railway in Missouri was greeted in St. Louis Thursady by federal Judge Faris. The same receivers named here by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, William G. Bierd, erstwhile president of the road, and Attorney W. W. Wheelock, were appointed. The Chicago and Alton has about 500 miles of track in Missouri.

In granting the petition, Judge Faris hinted that one reason for the Alton receivership might be founded on a desire to seek refuge from railway strike labor troubles. He said, according to a St. Louis dispatch, he would not be surprised to see all railways run to such cover, if the shopmen's strike continues much longer.

Similar opinions were expressed in Chicago. It was pointed out that any act against a road in the hands of receivers might be considered by the government in contempt of court, and could be punished without trial by jury.

Borah Bill Up

WASHINGTON— Passage by the house of the administration coal distribution bill left completion of the legslative program, growing out of the coal and rail strike emergency up to the senate today. Resumption of debate on the Borah bill to create a fact finding coal commission was the order of business in the senate with prospects for a vote on the measure today considered doubtful.

The bill for control of coal distribution and prices was put through the house Thursday by a vote of 214 to 61, the measure being opposed by 20 Republicans and supported by 30 Democrats.

The provisions of the bill which developed the greatest opposition was that giving the president the right after formally declaring the present emergency at an end, to proclaim the existence of another such emergency without asking the leave of congress. It was finally retained by a vote of 148 to 424 in the house proper after it had been voted out in committee of the whole.

Ketchup Barrage Gets Jealous Wife 6 Months

Miss Dolly Fowler, who charged barrage was aimed at her.

CHICAGO — Barrages are all right in some kinds of war but it all depends on what kind of a war you're playing at.

Mrs. Belle Sullivan found this out to her sorrow after she had laid down a running barrage of ketchup in a West Madison street cafe during a "friendly" little war around the corners of the eternal triangle.

Miss Dolly Fowler was the target for the barrage and after she had spent an anxious few moments dodging ketchup and sugar bowls she had Mrs. Sullivan arrested.

Miss Fowler was seated in the cafe with Julius Trot when the irate wife entered.

A few words passed. Then Mrs. Sullivan made certain pertinent remarks about Miss Fowler being responsible for the estrangement of herself and her husband.

Without more ado, according to witnesses, Mrs. Sullivan proceeded to lay down a barrage that would have done credit to a West Point graduate.

She opened fire with a ketchup bottle and the resulting explosion gave the battlefield a gory look. A sugar bowl followed the ketchup in the general direction of Miss Fowler but was halted in its course by a bullet from the revolver of her companion Trot.

Denies Use of State Help in Campaign

Henry Johnson Asserts He Pays For Supplies Used

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Henry Johnson, state treasurer, was undisturbed today by the charges of Sol Levitan, who is opposing him in his candidacy for renomination on the Republican ticket, that Johnson "had used state help, state supplies, and state stationery in at least a part of his campaign."

"Nothing to it," said Mr. Johnson, who was a visitor at the state fair. "Let Mr. Levitan keep on making such statements. He will make such charges every day against me in one form or another: that's the systematical way in a campaign."

Mr. Johnson said he had never appropriated any state stationery or postage stamps for his personal use in the campaign.

"What little I use I pay for out of my own pocket," he remarked.

DES MOINES — An amateur photographer's flashlight powder, coming in contact with the main feed coils at the Des Moines Electric Co., caused a short circuit which resulted in a shutting down of electric light and power in the city.

The photographer had been given permission to visit the plant. He paused to take a picture near the feeding lines which supply the downtown district, and allowed his flash to touch the coils.

Leap Bridge Gap With Cars to Get Dare Devil Yegg

CHICAGO — Two high powered cars late Thursday made a sensational "loop the loop for life" across the gap of the Michigan street bridge just after the jack knife had opened to allow a steamer through, with the result that an alleged safe blower was captured by detectives.

Sergeants Tuohy and Klatzko, touring the lower north side, chanced upon Vincent "Skimmer" Drucci, 440 North La Salle street, wanted for bond forfeiture in connection with the blowing of the safe belonging to Miss Agnes Gleason, teashop proprietor. Drucci was also in an automobile.

Drucci recognized the detectives, stepped on the gas and speeded south in the boulevard, the others in pursuit.

Escape looked impossible. A steamer tooted shrilly for the bridge to open. The wire gates came down. The blades of the great jackknife slowly raised.

Bending the gates as if they were paper, Drucci drove his car up the incline and shot it across the four foot gap between the halves of the bridge. He landed safely and coasted down the other side, apparently having foiled his pursuers.

The detectives were on his heels. Although the gap was wider, they duplicated their quarry's performance, 50 feet above the Chicago river. One block on the south side of the river Drucci was caught in the traffic jam. He tried to escape on foot, but was seized. He will appear in the Chicago avenue court today.

Farmer Bandits Find Sheriff "Poor Pickings"

CHICAGO — Herman Schumacher, Albert Creuss, and Fred Beck, young farmers from York Center, who later confessed to being bandits Wednesday and Saturday nights, attempted to "stick up" the car of Deputy Sheriff Fred Voss on a lonely stretch of spring road Thursday. They are now at the Wheaton county jail.

The bucolic bandits admitted that it had been their custom since June to desert the pitchfork for he "gat," and prey upon loving couples who had stopped their automobiles in unfrequented lengths of highway.

In a feed bin on one of the farms five watches and $200, part of the loot, was recovered.

It also was suggested federal troops might be called to insure operation of any road under receivership.

Woman's Ills Make Unhappy Home

There is no question but what the ills of women conspire against domestic harmony. The husband cannot understand these troubles and the physician finds it hard to cure them; therefore the overworked wife and mother continues to drag around day in and day out with headaches and backache, fretful and nervous.

Such women should be guided by the experience of women whose letters we are continually publishing in this paper. Many of them declare that they have been restored to health, strength and consequent happiness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after doctors and all other medicines had failed to help them. It will surely pay women who suffer from such ailments to try it.—Adv.

Illinois Central System Values the Good Will of Its Patrons

In the commercial world good will is regarded as one of the most valuable assets a business can have. In the valuation of industrial companies it is frequently rated at many millions of dollars. We believe that good will is also of great value to a railway system—in fact, we believe it is one of the most valuable assets a railway system can have.

We are constantly seeking to promote good will among out patrons for the Illinois Central System. We are doing it by attempting to render a dependable, efficient transportation service; by having officers and employes who are at all times courteous and obliging to our patrons; by giving our patrons accurate information in regard to the Illinois Central System; by co-operating with our patrons and seeking their co-operation with us through their constructive criticism and suggestions.

We have sought to create for this railway system, in the consciousness of our patrons, a personality embodying the highest ideals of public service. It is toward such ideals that we are constantly striving. It is our endeavor to be of constructive service to every community, every farmer, every business man, every industrial and commercial enterprise in the territory we serve with transportation.

We have repeatedly appealed to our patrons to work closely with us, to support us, not only with their business, but with their friendships, to fortify us with their constructive criticism and suggestions.

The Illinois Central System and its patrons are sharers of common problems. It is to our best interests to be ever mindful of the best interests of the territory we serve, and, on the other hand, we believe our patrons can best serve their own interests by doing that which will strengthen us. Representatives of all departments of the Illinois Central System are filled with a pride in their work and a desire to be of helpful service to our patrons. They are striving to make every patron of this railroad feel a friendship for and a personal interest in the Illinois Central System.

It is our hope that the Illinois Central System will always stand in the front rank of the railroads of this country in having the good will of its patrons. We feel grateful to those we strive to serve for the full measure of support and confidence which they have accorded us in the past, and we shall leave nothing undone in endeavoring to merit their continued support and confidence in the future. We feel that having the good will of our patrons places an added responsibility upon us to do our utmost to serve them well, and we accept that responsibility, pleased that we have the opportunity to contribute to the upbuilding of a great and fruitful territory, the incomparable Mississippi Valley.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

BONUS FAILURE SHAME OF UNITED STATES--BOB

"The country demands the immediate passage of the bonus bill", said Senator Robert M. La Follette speaking before the senate in the final debate before the vote on the bill.

"The Senate, by a very large majority, is in favor of its immediate passage. The veterans themselves are satisfied with the bill and demand its passage. Were it not for the assertion frequently made that the president intends to veto it, there would be no occasion to spend even a moment's time in discussing it.

"My only objection to the bill is that it is too meagre in the provision it makes for our soldiers of the late war. It does, however, recognize the country's obligation to these men and it does something toward meeting that obligation. For hat reason I shall vote for it.

"This bill merely applies a principle that we have recognized since our government was established, that the financial disadvantage suffered by our soldiers during military service in defense of their country shall be equalized in so far as reasonably possible by some monetary allowance by the government.

"Even before constitutional government was established, during the French and Indian wars it is familiar history that the colonies rewarded with land grants the soldiers who gave their time and risked their lives fighting the common enemy for the protection of the frontier settlers.

George Washington received a grant of 3,000 acres of land from his native state of Virginia and shares in the Potomac Canal Co., valued at $10,000 for his military services. And later he received by an act of Congress $64,415 as adjusted compensation for his services during the Revolutionary war.

Lafayette, by a special act of Congress, received $200,000 and 200,000 acres of land over and above the pay otherwise due him on account of his services in aid of our struggle for independence.

Bounties to private soldiers who enlisted in the Colonial armies during the Revolution were the rule; and in 1779, at the request of Washington, $100 extra was allowed to every soldier who had enlisted early in the war, in order that his compensation might more nearly equal that of the men who came in later and who received larger bounties.

Every soldier who enlisted in the Mexican war for twelve months or more,—in addition to his regular pay, was entitled, under the law, on honorable discharge to $100 in interest bearing treasury script or to 160 acres of land.

Paid Civil War Vets

We are all familiar with the history of the large bounties paid to enlisted men during the Civil War, particularly during the latter period of the war.

Abraham Lincoln applied for and received compensation for his military service in the Black Hawk War.

Yet no one claims that these men dimmed the glory of their achievements by demanding and receiving compensation for their services.

The amount of adjusted compensation received by our soldiers in previous wars, when measured by its purchasing power at that time, far exceeded in value the amount of the compensation proposed in this bill.

Why is it, Mr. President, that it is now proposed in some quarters to reverse this time-honored precedent of our country? What is the objection to treating the soldiers of the late war at least as fairly as we have treated the soldiers of other wars? By every principle of justice the soldiers of the late war have a greater claim to compensation for their services than had the soldiers of any previous war.

Remember, sir, that in all other wars (except for a period near the close of the Civil War) our soldiers always determined for themselves whether they would go to war or not.

But in the late war all this was changed. The draft followed so closely on the declaration of war that almost before the country realized that it had been plunged into war millions of our young men were suddenly withdrawn from civil life and thrust into the army with no opportunity to choose the character of their service, and with no knowledge of even its probable duration.

But that is not all. In the late war for the first time in our history we raised an army and sent it across the sea to do its fighting in foreign lands thousands of miles from home. In no other war were our soldiers ever called upon to make the sacrifices, or to divorce themselves so quickly and completely from friends and families and the occupations of civil life, as in this war.

Denial A Disgrace

Surely, Mr. President, the principle of honestly and fair dealing which has led this government through its history to make up to its soldiers something of the monetary loss they suffered, applies with greater force to the soldiers of the late war.

To deny to the soldiers of this war at least the measure of compensation that has been accorded to soldiers of our other wars would be a national disgrace, and an insult to every man who wore his country's uniform in this foreign war.

Mr. President, what are the objections urged against this bill? Every voice that is raised against allowing the veterans of the late war even the scant compensation provided in this bill, first pays a glowing tribute to the courage and heroism of the soldiers. It is even said that the debt which we owe these young men is too great to be paid in money; that it is an insult to offer them the pittance granted in this bill.

I agree that the compensation provided in this bill is not enough, but it does not follow that because we do not pay in full, that we should pay nothing on account.

I agree with those senators who say that the wealth of the country would not be sufficient to fully compensate these boys for the service they rendered their country in the World War, but I do not accept their conclusion that therefore the boys should receive nothing at all.

This is not a question of patriotism or of sentiment. It is simply a hard fact that we suddenly took more than 4,000,000 of our finest young men out of civil life at [illegible] they were entering upon their careers, and sent 2,000,000 of them overseas in the military service of their country. We kept them out of civil life from one to two and even three years. We put them that much behind their competitors who stayed at home and profited during an era of high wages and great profits such as neither this nor any other country ever before experienced.

With the war over, they came back to civil life, not to find their former positions waiting for them as they had been promised when they were sent away, but to find their positions filled by others. Then came deflation, depression, unemployment, and distress.

Is it any wonder that in this situation a million ex-service men were out of employment last winter? Even more will probably be without employment next winter if present conditions continue. Three hundred thousand are out of employment today, according to the records of the American Legion alone.

Now, all that is proposed by this bill is to give these men a chance. It is to lessen just a little the handicap they were placed under as the result of their military service. If we are grateful, let us show our gratitude in a practical way, not merely by words but by deeds.

But, Mr. President, I am aware that it is said that this country can not afford to do anything for the ex-soldiers now. They say it will cost three or four billion dollars to carry out the provisions of this bill. Why is it, sir, that three or four billion dollars look so large to some people when the money is going to the soldiers of the late war, and was an insignificant sum when it was being squandered for other purposes.

Plenty for Profiteers.

Since the end of the war we have had plenty of money to pay gratuities to the railroads. We have compensated the war profiteers not only by allowing them to keep the larger portion of the unholy profits they made out of the war, but by paying them for the profits they claimed they would have made if the war had continued longer. As soon as the election is over the present administration proposes to pass a subsidy bill, and the administration which now pleads poverty in order to defeat compensation for the soldiers, will be urging millions in bonuses to the shipping interests.

No, Mr. President, it is not that we are unable to raise the money, spread over a term of years as it is, to pay our soldiers adjusted compensation; it is that the money is desired for other purposes and for other interests.

There need be no difficulty about raising the money required to furnish the adjusted compensation provided in this bill. It is the opinion of the chairman of the committee reporting this bill, as set forth in the report accompanying it, that during the next three years at least no additional taxation will be required to meet the payments called for by this bill. But I am not satisfied to let the matter rest there. It is my hope and shall be my endeavor when this bill becomes a law to see a plan of taxation provided which will raise all the money necessary to carry out out the provisions of the bill. Restore and improve the excess profits tax so recently repealed, and if that does not provide money enough, increase the tax on excessive incomes and raise the inheritance tax on vast fortunes, many of which were made out of the war, and you will have enough and more than enough money to give the soldiers their adjusted compensation without burdening the industry of the country with any additional taxes.

But even if the finances of the country were in the deplorable condition claimed by the opponents of the bill, why make the common soldier bear an undue share of the country's misfortune?

Mr. President, there is no danger of the common soldier ever receiving more than is his due. I have been in public life over thirty years and I never voted against a pension or other relief measure for a private soldier, and I am proud of the fact that as a member of the house of representatives I voted to pass more than 300 pension bills over the veto of President Cleveland. If there are interests in this country today strong enough to bring about the veto of the present bill, I shall certainly do all within my power to pass the bill over that veto.

U. S. Will Benefit

I wish to call attention in conclusion to just one other point. It seems to be assumed by the opponents of this measure that the compensation to be paid our soldiers is so much money lost; that is like money loaned to foreign governments which will never be repaid, or money spent for battleships which soon become obsolete. The very opposite of this is true. Every dollar to be expended under this bill goes to help some young, heroic ex-soldier get on his feet and to become a producing member of the community instead of being one of the army of unemployed. Every dollar of this money will be spent here at home for food and clothing and necessaries of life, for vocational training, for the improvement of the farms and the homes of the country. Why, sir, if it were a mere matter of dollars and cents, if it were a mere matter of increasing the wealth and prosperity of the country, there could not be a better investment made with an equal amount of money than to extend it as provided in this bill. To the majority of the ex-soldiers who have come home and been able to get some foothold in civil life again, precarious though it be, this bill will be an aid and support. To that other army of ex-solders who have not yet been able to find permanent occupations in civil life, this bill comes in the time of their greatest need to rescue them from unemployment and want and to assist them in getting back into the useful and productive occupations of civil life.

This bill simply recognizes the existence of an obligation to the ex-service men and provides for some slight payment upon that obligation. Not the former service men alone, but the whole country will benefit as the result of the passage of this bill.

The honor and the self-interest of the country both require that this bill be promptly enacted into law.

Bonus Measure Sent Back To House For Vote

Rush Measure For Speedy Action; Expect Harding Veto

WASHINGTON — Approved by the senate, 47 to 22, the soldiers bonus bill was sent back today to the house, which passed it last March by an even greater majority. House leaders planned to send the measure to conference today under a special rule which would limit debate.

Senate and house conferees will be the same as those on the tariff measure, but since there are few points of difference on the bonus the managers are expected to lay aside the tariff long enough to frame a report on the compensation measure. With favorable action on this report by congress the bill would be ready for the president shortly.

Both friends and foes of the bonus find satisfaction in the senate line-up. Foes pointed out that 33 senators are lined up against the bonus, enough to prevent passage over the president's veto, should be disapprove it as they confidently expect he will. On the other hand friends pointed out that the number of senators supporting the bonus on the roll call Thursday exceeded by one the necessary two thirds majority of those present and voting to over-ride a veto.

Bath House Closed Today; Water Stagnant

Brittingham bath house was closed for the season today by M. J. Quann, superintendent of parks due to the poor condition of the water on Lake Monona. The entire Madison shore has been covered with a thick green scum for some time past preventing swimmers from entering the water.

The south and east shores of the lake are said to be comparatively free of scum thought to be due to the south easterly winds which have prevailed on the lake.

Contracts for fishing in Madison lakes will be let about the middle September, it was stated by W. Barber of the state conservation commission this morning.

Police Fall to Find Clue to D'AmicoKiller

pled over on the floor, dead. A squad of police arrived in the patrol wagon and ambulance several minutes later. Coroner W. E. Campbell was called and ordered the body taken to the Schroeder undertaking parlors.

Impanelment of a coroner's jury to hold an inquest into the death of D'Amico was begun today by Coroner W. E. Campbell.

Lester Burmeister, fingerprint expert, was called on by police for aid in finding the slayer of the wealthy merchant. Photographs of imprints on the stock were taken by Burmeister to me compared with those of suspects, if arrested later.

Several men took part in the shooting, it is believed. In addition to small shot, bullets believed to have been fired from a .32 calibre revolver were imbedded in walls of the store, both inside and out. Practically the entire window pane had been shot out. The spread of the bullets covered nearly five feet.

The gun, which was picked up by police, was a standard 12-gauge double barreled arm. Both barrels had been fired.

Three bullets, believed to have been fired from a .32 calibre pistol, were found by Capital Times reporters where they had lodged in the plaster of a hallway leading to an upper story after they had passed through three walls.

The bullets had struck in a radius of eight inches. They first went through the glass, penetrating a door leading to the hallway and drove through the plaster of the wall.

D'Amico had been nervous throughout the day and had complained of being sick, according to his wife and Arnao, but he had given no reason for his uneasiness. A puzzling angle in the shooting is the statement of Arnao that his business partner had never before occupied the seat at the lead. To sit down, he was forced to push aside merchandise on display, although there were chairs about the store.

A tangled story of intrigue, with Death in the background, was revealed by Chicago authorities by long-distance telephone to The Capital Times.

Twenty years ago, D'Amico, then a young man of 25, came to America from a little town in Sicily, known throughout the world as the hotbed of the "Blackhand," the Camorra, and other secret organizations whose stock in trade is violence and sudden death.

After a period of wandering, he settled in Chicago in a colony of his countrymen, later marrying there. He led the usual life of his fellows and was looked up to as a minor leader. He was well liked and was known as a man of no small influence. By shrewd business dealings, he accumulated money and property.

Then one day about seven years ago, Chicago's "Little Italy" woke up to find that "Jimmy" D'Amico had disappeared. All efforts to find him were futile and with the sophistication of the Latins, his friends, used to the surprises that are a daily occurence in their lives, shrugged their shoulders and proceeded to forget him. With D'Amico went his wife and child. He was never to return until about a month ago, when his brother was killed.

In the meantime, the story goes, D'Amico had moved to a secluded farm near Arena, in Iowa county, Wisconsin, and about five miles west of Mazomanie, Dane county. He lived there until seven months ago, when he came to Madison and entered into partnershipwith Arnao. He had plenty of money.

Deciding not to return to his old home in Chicago, D'Amico negotiated a trade of his farm near Arena for an apartment house in the former city, about two months ago. Then came the death of his brother, Angelo, and he made a hurried trip to Chicago, staying there two weeks.

When he returned to Madison, he was grief-stricken. He appeared to think of nothing but the death of his brother. He had been preparing to move to Chicago until last night.

He was talking of the shooting of his brother when he himself was shot down, according to Arnao. He was talking of his brother shortly before he was killed, according to Arneo. He said he was unable to explain his death.

D'Amico's wife was prostrated by the shock of her husband's death.

"Why did they do it? Oh, why did they do it? He was such a good man," she cried incessantly as she rocked to and fro on a little chair, her head in her hands. But the three children of the slain man, Martha, 8, Nick, 5, and Joe, 3, not realizing that tragedy had stalked into their lives, slept in peace in a room only a few feet from the scene of their parent's death.

Police were furnished with a new aid in their search for the slayer or slayers in the statement of a woman living across the street from the D'Amico store that she saw a man flee north on Murray st. as she ran to the street at the sound of the shots. He wore a dark suit and had his hat pulled low over his eyes, she said. She described him as being of medium build.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greasless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silkly, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Adv.

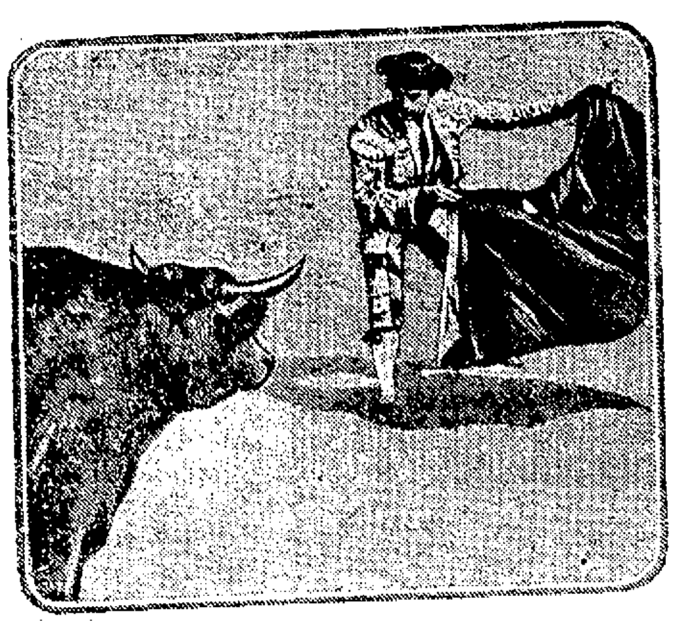
Here's Why the Bulls Fight in Spain



SPANISH bulls are trained to be peevish. The uglier they are, the better they are in the eyes of the breeders. Then, on top of this, the bullfighters get in front of them with a big red cape and flap it around, always keeping on their toes and jumping nimbly to one side when the bull rushes at them with head down.

Spanish bullfighters spend most of their youth training to do this, but Rodolph Valentino had only about three months in which to learn the art when he was training to take the role of Gallardo in "Blood and Sand," a new picture version of the Ibanez novel for Paramount. Valentino as a toreador fights a bull in an important scene in the picture.

Keep Campaign Expenses Far Under Limit

Preliminary Returns Show Expenditures Running Low

Preliminary expense accounts filed today by candidates in the Wisconsin general election primary showed that disbursements had been kept far under the legal restriction set by the state corrupt practices act.

Up in the eleventh district where Congressman A. P. Nelson is seeking renomination, opposed by H. H. Peavey, the La Follette candidate, Mr. Nelson's report shows that he expended $938.70, and his opponent $636.37. The state law allows an expenditure of $2,500 for primary and general election.

Victor L. Berger, candidate for congress on the socialist ticket in the fifth district made no expenditures and had no receipts in the primary, he said.

The Nuss Implement Co. Thursday filed suit in Circuit court against W. J. McGuire for $513, alleged to be due on an unredeemed note.

County Clerk George J. Fjelstad's office has ready for mailing the tax rolls for townships, villages and cities in Dane Co.

With The Candidates

Blaine Scores Coal Barons in Speech at Fond du Lac; See New Barrell Raised

VIROQUA, Wis.—A plea for the nomination of a complete ticket of state officers, legislative candidates and congressmen favorable to the La Follette Progressive wing of the Republican party was made by Gov. J. J. Blaine in a speech here today. The governor said that both he and Senator La Follette needed the cooperation of persons elected to office, a cooperation which they would not receive if their opponents were chosen.

"I want the voters to appreciate that the governor ought to have the cooperation of the state officers," the governor said. "That is why I am advocating the re-nomination of Lieut. Gov. Comings, Fred R. Zimmerman for secretary of state, Soloman Levitan as state treasurer and Herman Ekern as attorney general.

"All of these candidates are pledged to cooperate with your governor in promoting economy and the equalization of the tax burdens.

"Senator La Follette has become more than a senator from Wisconsin, for he is the single voice in the United States senate through which the masses of the common people can speak. I want to see every Progressive Republican candidate for congress nominated who will back up Senator La Follette at the other end of the Capitol in his struggles for the masses."

"When I came to the office of governor I found on my hands a hostile legislature. Both houses were organized against your governor, and the committees on taxation, appropriations and finance were organized and under the control of the reactionary members. Therefore, I could not put through any constructive program or economy or the reduction in the tax burdens of the the only way that I could protect the tax payers was to use the veto power. I used that power liberally. I vetoed 50 bills, and I saved the tax payers of this state through these vetoes millions of dollars.

"As a result of my vetoes and the executive administration, you will find that for the first time in nearly 20 years there will be a substantial reduction in the tax burdens.

DEMOCRATS BACK MATHIE.

SUPPORT of leading Democrats in Wisconsin is being given the candidacy of Karl Mathie for nomination as the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, he announces. Col. Robert B. McCoy of Sparta and H. A. Moehlenpah of Milwaukee, the last two democratic candidates for governor are actively backing him, Mr. Mathie advises.

Appeal is made by him to Democrats urging that they vote on September 5, and vote in the Democratic party to preserve their party organization. He says that drys and wet alike are lining up behind his candidacy.

GANFIELD HOPEFUL.

County organizations throughout Wisconsin acting as an advisory committee of 700 members are prepared to further the candidacy of W. A. Ganfield for U. S. senator in the closing days of the Republican primary campaign, it was announced today from Ganfield headquarters.

Names of the committee will be made public shortly, Robert K. Coe, manager of the candidate's campaign, said.

"It is our positive conviction that this final rally for Ganfield will result in his nomination," Mr. Coe said in a statement to voters. "The remarkable and definite swing to Ganfield during the past ten days," he declared, "carries renewed assurances of his success and inspires his old and new supporters with a firm determination to give his campaign that final punch that will win the primary battle."

PREDICT MORGAN WIN

ATTY. Gen. Morgan will win the Republican nomination for governor by a majority of from five to ten per cent over Gov. Blaine, the Anti-Saloon league estimated on the basis of returns to 2,000 questionnaires sent to a selected group of observers. These returns, the league says in a statement today, show also that W. A. Ganfield is rapidly gaining on Senator La Follette in the closing days of the campaign.

MORGAN PLEDGES ACTION

MILWAUKEE, Wis—If the people of Wisconsin want work and little talk from their governor, William J. Morgan, attorney general, said today that he could satisfy them as cheif executive, but if they want speeches and no action, Governor Blaine is their man, he declared.

The attorney general, in one of his closing addresses as a candidate at the Republican primaries, September 5, said that their experience of the past two years should show the people that he believes in action, while Governor Blaine believes in talk.

"The Spy"

By GEORGE ALLAN ENGLAND

Published by arrangement
with The Literary Digest Newspaper Syndicate

As the first gush of flame leaped up from the explosion, Kate—flung forward by the shock—crawled toward the prostrate figure lying on the floor.

"Denny! Denny!" she entreated. "You aren't hurt——?" Then she recoiled in horror, dazed and uncomprehending.

"Hamilton!" she choked.

The outer tumult was a calm, beside that in her brain. Shaking and ghastly pale, she stared in the wavering light that now penetrated through the half-open outer door.

Hamilton, indeed!

Kate vaguely saw his features. There was no mistaking them. Beside him something metallic glinted. It looked like silver. Mechanically she picked it up, and sensed letters graven on its surface. She could not read them; but somehow the truth penetrated her consciousness. This thing was a badge.

"A detective—— a detective——!"

Then she straightened with a stab of anguish. There had been two men in the shed; one of them a spy, a traitor, a dynamiter, the other a detective.

Two men and one of them her Denny!

Two—and the detective lay before her!

Yes, but then—?

"No, no, not that! Not that!" cried the girl, recoiling.

Unmindful of everything outside, indifferent with a woman's blind and centered passion whether the elevators stood or fell, she sprang to her feet and leaped toward the inner door giving upon the stairway.

Equally uncaring for the stunned and helpless man behind her and for the tumult of wild sounds without, up the long, white-dusted stair she ran.

Above, she knew, a passageway extended from end to end of the elevator, flanked with grain-bins on either hand. Denny must have fled that way; and she could find him there. She could learn the truth—hear him deny all guilt—let him explain—

"Denny! Oh, Denny, boy!" she called as she ran. The heart within her leaped, caged, against its prison. Her breath choked her. "Denny boy! Where are you?"

She reached the top of the stairs, turned and scouted down the long, dim aisle, lighted by yellow incandescents. Once she tripped over a ring-bolt in the floor, where a trap gave entrance to a bottomless pit grain below. Thick was the air with dust and smoke. From outside crashed a tumult of yells, cries, steam whistles, the ringing of bells, the trampling of innumerable feet.

"Denny! Oh, Denny! It's Kate calling! Are you—are you here?"

Then, clutching at her heart, she stopped.

Far down the aisle, a cringing, crawling figure of a man had just passed under one of the blurred spots of light beneath a bulb.

"Denny! . . . "

He stopped, turned, hesitated and crouched toward her. At sight of his attitude her heart went sick.

"Oh, God above!" she whispered. "It—it can't be—!"

She stood there trembling, leaning against the door of a wheat-bin. Staring, her eyes beheld him as in dreams. Then all at once she heard him speak.

"Kate! That you? I didn't know this—was your evenin' to come here! I thought—"

He paused. She could find no words, but stood there peering at him with awful eyes.

"Kate! Is—is he dead?"

Denis had come close, now, and stood before her, cringing and ghastly to look upon in that dim light. She saw his cheek was gashed to the bone, and blood was dribbling from the wound. He raised his hand to it mechanically, and smeared it off; and still his eyes could not meet hers.

"Not dead, Kate? I ain't—killed him?"

Who put that bomb down there?" she burst out at him, ignoring his pitiable question.

"That—that what?" he weakly hedged; but now she had him by the huge shoulders, shaking him with superhuman strength.

"That bomb!" she cried.

"Shhh!" he entreated, glancing timorously round. "Not so loud, Katie! Somebody might come up here, an'—"

"Denny! It was you, you, you!"

Her voice was wild with horror. She spurned him from her.

"You!"

All at once the man fell to shuddering, with a chill and awful spasm.

"Listen!" he quavered, holding out tremulous hands. "Hear that, outside? Oh, if they ketch me—now—!"

She stared at him as though he had been some fearful apparition from Hell. His red hair and the blood on his cheek seemed to burn, by contrast with his pork-white skin, blanched with panic. Staring she recoiled from him, a terrible light in those black eyes of hers.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

GIRL WANTS MORE PIN MONEY

Father and Mother Think She Does Not Earn It

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper to give one's employer the hand and wish him a good time when he is leaving for his vacation?

Should a girl offer her hand when a gentleman friend is leaving for another city to take a position, or should he offer his?

When a young man calls for [illegible] first time with a mutual [illegible]nd for the purpose of meet[illegible] me is it proper to serve a [illegible]t lunch. How long should [illegible] call last? Also, upon leav[illegible]ng should I offer my hand and [illegible]at should I say?

When being introduced is it better form to offer the hand?

CLARA L.

Simply tell your employer you hope he will have a fine vacation. Do not shake hands unless he offers his on leaving.

When a friend leaves for another city it is all right to offer your hand.

It would be all right to serve a light lunch. I like the custom of serving something because it friend how long the call should last. You can't ask them to go home. When they are leaving offer the young man your hand and ask him seems so much more hospitable. It is up to the man and your girl to come again.

It is correct to offer the hand or not to do so when being introduced. One way is not more preferable than the other. Don't be awkward, however, and half stick out your hand and then draw it back. Hold it out and the other person will offer his.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We have had quite a discussion as to what is the correct thing to do when at a hose, handkerchief or miscellaneous shower for a bride-to-be. Should the person who received the high score prize or other prizes that are given present them to the honor guest?

YOURS VERY DOUBTFUL.

The persons receiving prizes should keep them. The bride-to-be receives her gifts from the shower.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a very good-looking boy about seventeen and he also loves me. My father is very mean to me and I have no mother. I am only fifteen. Do you think I have a right to go with that boy to the park and to a picture show?

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

Little girl, you are too young to go to the park and the picture show with the boy. I am sorry to disappoint you this way, because you are so unhappy. You will be happier later in life, however, if you content yourself at home with work and reading for a year or two longer.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl going on seventeen. My parents say that I am too young to go with boys, but do you think I am? When I do go with them my mother says nothing when I am with my sister.

Is it all right for a girl of that age to go to a dance with another girl?

WONDERING.

When a girl is seventeen or eighteen she is old enough to have boy callers and to go with them occasionally. Discretion should be used, however, in the choosing of friends and places of amusement.

Two girls should not attend dances together.

The Story of

An Unloved Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

THE UNWELCOME TELEPHONE MESSAGE

TED COMFORTS DORIS.

There was a shocked silence at the other end of the wire. Then Mrs. Jones spoke in horrified tones:

"My dear, I hadn't the slightest idea. I was just relieved that she was out of the way and thought you would be, too. I'm more than sorry."

"It doesn't really make any difference," said Doris and hung-up.

"Look here," said Ted forgetting his own desire in the face of the girl's very evident misery, "I don't believe Alec had anything to do with Estelle's going to Washington. I don't believe he'd be such a brute."

It was, as a matter of fact, confirmation of his suspicions of the afternoon, but something had to be said to take that terrible misery from the girl's face. But Doris was not to be misled.

"You know better," she said, and then her knees sagged beneath her and she sank down in a little sobbing heap.

"Doris, Doris," Ted was beside her, his arms about her. "Don't cry like that, don't! The man isn't worth it."

He gathered her up in his arms and sat down in a big rocking chair, where he rocked her back and forth as if she had been a child.

I think he realized then that there was no room for him in the heart of the girl he was holding in his arms. He would, indeed, have been stupid to believe otherwise. Grief such as hers at the news Mrs. Jones had just given her could mean only one thing. None the less, Ted was too dogged to give up hope. Since Alec had gone off with Estelle, and there was hardly any doubt of it, Doris might just as well stop caring for her husband. When that happened he would be right at hand. It was all very well to laugh at the idea of hearts being caught on the rebound, but he knew more than one instance where it had happened and the marriages had turned out very happily.

Thus he comforted himself while Doris sobbed in his arms.

"Poor little honey," he whispered, his lips against her soft hair. "Poor little honey!"

His anger grew against the man who had caused her suffering. Didn't Alec have eyes in his head, not to see that Doris was in love with him? Didn't he have sense enough to know that married to him under such circumstances, it was almost inevitable she would idealize him, romanticize about him until she had fallen in love with him? And then to prefer a lightweight like Estelle and to go off with her in this brazen way, calmly telling him to look after his law-wife! The man was a fool, a brute! Ted couldn't think of epithets strong enough to hurl at him!

Doris calmed down presently, her sobs lessening, but her body still shaken with long-drawn, shuddering sighs. It was growing late and Ted was worried. He didn't like to leave her alone, yet he felt it would hardly do to remain.

"I'm all right now," Doris said, brokenly, a little later, getting to her feet. "It's late. You ought to go home."

"No," said Ted, slowly. "I'm not going."

Billy Whiskers

By Frances Montgomery

"Gee. You must have had cheerful thoughts most of the time you were sailing," said Stubby when Billy told him how worried he was at their narrow escapes, especially over the mountain parts.

"Well, didn't you feel that way?"

"I must acknowledge that I did."

"Me, too!" said Button. "I hated those treeless plains where certain death awaited one either by starvation or thirst."

"I am also through with flying machines," said Stubby. "I never want to see one again, and as much as I hate walking, I would walk every step of the way home in preference to riding in one of tham."

"And I would stay out here forever, if to sail in one of those was the only way to get back home," said Button.

"All being agreed that we want no more aeroplanes," said Billy, "we will keep our ears open and when we hear the boys planning to go back we'd better make ourselves scarce."

"I haven't heard them say anything about how or when they are going," said Stubby. "It is my opinion, though, that they too, have had enough of aeroplanes for one while and that they will go back by train and ship their machines."

"Listen," said Button. "I hear someone coming."

Presently the door was opened and three men came in.

"Here they are!" said one.

"That was a capital idea of yours Stanton, to exhibit these animals in a dime museum. It will be a drawing card, I can tell you, for every child in San Francisco will want to come to see them, whether their parents bring them or not."

"Here, get out of here," baaed Billy. "I am not going into any dime museum, where there are a lot of freaks and where I would be pointed at and poked at." And he made a pass at the men that had been talking and would have butted them through the door had they not jumped into a manger.

"We'd better look out, Harkins, just in time to get out of the way. that goat don't like strangers and he'll butt us."

"Here, Billy, nice old fellow! Come here and get this apple!" said the man addressed as Harkins.

But Billy did not feel like eating cross at being interrupted. apples just then. Besides he felt

TOLEDO, Ohio.—Eddie Held of St. Louis won the National public links golf championship by defeating Richard Walsh of New York. BED TIME STORIES

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FOUR LEAF CLOVER

Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

Uncle Wiggily sat on the porch of his hollow stump bungalow. Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, was walking through the field across the path. It was a field owned by Mr. Chuck, the groundhog gentleman. I have told you stories about Woodie and Waddie Chuck, so I think you may remember those woodchuck boys.

Every now and then Uncle Wiggily saw Nurse Jane walk more slowly. Then the muskrat lady would stoop over as if looking for something. Next she would straighten up and joyfully murmur:

"There, I've found another!"

"Nurse Jane must have broken her string of beads and be finding them one by one," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. Then, being a kind rabbit gentleman, he gave his pink nose a twinkle, to awaken a little fly who was sleeping on it, and over into the field hopped Mr. Longears.

"I have come to help you pick up your lost beads, Janie," he said.

"That is very nice of you," spoke Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy with a smile. "But I haven't lost any beads."

"Then what are you so often picking up?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Four-leaf clovers," answered the muskrat lady. "There are more than I have ever seen before in this field."

"I don't see any," said Uncle Wiggily, looking at the clovers. "I see many with three leaves, but none with four leaves."

"Ah, that's just it!" laughed Nurse Jane. "It isn't every one who can see clovers with four leaves. The three-leaf ones are very common, but those with four are very rare and scarce. That's why it is said to be very lucky to find a four-leaf clover—just like picking up a horseshoe."

"Hum!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Of course I don't believe that, but I should like to find a four-leaf clover just the same. You know there is no such thing as luck, Nurse Jane."

"Well, really, I suppose there isn't," agreed the muskrat lady. "But it is a nice thought to have—that a four-leaf clover, so different from the three-leaf ones, may bring you luck. And if you have happy, jolly thoughts, Uncle Wiggily, even if they are only about clovers, it seems to make the day brighter. And when you think the day is bright, even though it may be cloudy and rainy, everything seems more pleasant."

"Ker-snitzio!" sneezed the Fox.

"There is something in that," admitted the bunny. "I must try to find a four-leaf clover so I'll be lucky." But however he looked and looked and looked, not one could he find, though Nurse Jane picked them up right and left. Sometimes it is that way, one person will find many four-leaf clovers and another may look in the same green clump and see not one, though many may be there. It is just a matter of eyesight, I suppose.

"Well, I think this isn't to be my lucky day," said Uncle Wiggily at last, when he could pick no four-leaf clover. "However, I shall not let that worry me. Let me do something for you, Nurse Jane. I may get an adventure out of it, even if I find no rare clovers."

"Very well, you may go to the store for me and bring me a box of pepper," said the muskrat lady. "I am going to make pickled beats this afternoon."

Off hopped Uncle Wiggily, over the fields and through the woods, on his way to the store to get the pickling pepper.

"Be careful not to spill any of the pepper, so that it flies up your nose, or you'll sneeze, Uncle Wiggily," warned the monkey doodle gentleman at the grocery store.

"I'll be careful," promised Mr. Longears. Homeward no his way he hopped, carrying the pepper. "I'll go through a clover field and see if I can not find at least one with four leaves," said the bunny to himself. Through the field he hopped when, all of a sudden, there was a rustling in the bushes and out came the Fuzzy Fox.

"Ah, ha! Ah, ho!" barked the Fox. "This time you shall not get away, Uncle Wiggily! I'll nibble your ears!"

"Not if I can help it!" cried the bunny, and away he hopped as fast as the wind. But the Fox came after him, drawing nearer and nearer, until Uncle Wiggily could hear the pitter-patter of the bad chap's toenails on the dried leaves and grass of the field.

"Oh, I must get away! I must get safely home with Nurse Jane's pickling pepper!" panted Uncle Wiggily. The Fox was close behind him. Suddenly, just ahead of him, Uncle Wiggily saw what he had never been able to see ever in his life—A Four-Leaf Clover!

"Oh, I must stop and pick that, Fox or no Fox," thought the bunny. "It may give me good luck." Uncle Wiggily stopped short to pick the four-leaf clover. And the Fox was so close behind him that when the bunny stopped the Fox bumped into him, turned a somersault head over heels and came down on his nose. And just then the box of pepper fell out of Uncle Wiggily's pocket, the cover came off when the box tumbled over over and over quite a way from the bunny, and the pepper spilled out close to the Fox.

"Ker-choo! Ker-choo! Ker-snitzio!" sneezed the Fox, and he sneezed so hard that he turned another somersault, flipped up into a tree, where he was caught on the branches and he couldn't scramble down for a long time. And before the Fox could get down Uncle Wiggily, holding his paw over his nose, picked up what was left of the pepper and hurried home with it.

"Nurse Jane!" he cried. "I found a four-leaf clover and it surely brought me good luck! Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!"

And so everything ended happily, and the pickled beets were very good. So if the lead pencil doesn't forget to put its rubber on when it goes walking with the fountain pen, you shall hear next about Uncle Wiggily's corn roast.

AT THE THEATERS

GOOD WEEK-END BILL AT THE ORPHEUM

At a conference of experts the feature act of the Orpheum would, we imagine, be awarded to the Ramdalls and Deyo trio whose sprightly goings on in several dance diversions were not at all hard to watch. Two important numbers of the program were away above the run of anything that has been here. Lillian Goenne is a relief from straight melodrama in a little plotless sketch concerning the mournful antics of the poor waif on Christmas. She refuses to be mournful and turns her efforts into a burlesque of all sorts that you may [illegible]. Adeline Jason and Helen Harrigan are back with us in the new frocks and new songs. The ladies have pleasant voices which they use with knowledge during their quota of time. Bob Ferns has the aid of Nellie Mayo and Bob Hulen in musical conglomeration called "A Lease For Life." The dancing is really the only part of it that can be called adaquate; the conversation and singing were not so good. Roy La Pearl and companions have a singing act of merit combined with some heated dialogue whose intensity and humor makes many laugh. The Seebacks in the opener give a lively gymnastic exhibition with the elusive punching bags.

THE MASQUERADERS

Guy Bates Post is now playing at the Strand theater in "The Masquerader."

The story depicts the struggle of two men so close in resemblance that the wife of one cannot tell them apart. And the bachelor, who recognizes in her the one woman in the world he could love, finds himself at bay because of the sense of honor that he cannot stifle.

Seldom has a theme of similar interest been presented on the screen. "The Masquerader" is an established success upon the stage. Guy Bates Post, who created the title role, has taken his part [illegible] for the picture which is produced by Richard Walton Tully.

Trained by long experience, the star gives an intimate study of the characteristics of the two men: one a [illegible] gone astray, and the other an impeccable genius in impoverished circumstances. A cast of excellence interprets the supporting parts.

There is also being shown an Aesop's fable comedy cartoon, and motion pictures of the 32nd Division reunion.

THE BONDED WOMAN

Betty Compson's latest Paramount picture, "The Bonded Woman," proved so far above the ordinary run of pictures as to provoke applause from the large and enthusiastic audience which attended its premiere at the Majestic theater last night.

It is a story of the sea, grippingly told by the late John Fleming Wilson. Miss Compson has an exacting emotional role to which she is perfectly suited, and the picture has many elements of suspense. Not the least of these arises from the fact that there are two leading men in the production—John Bowers and Richard Dix. The supporting cast also includes J. Farrell MacDonald and Ethel Wales. Albert S. LeVino made the screen adaptation, and Philip E. Rosen directed.

Florence Vidor at the Parkway

Florence Vidor and Jack Mulhall are at the Parkway in an amazing drama called "Dusk to Dawn". "Dusk to Dawn" has been adapted from Katherine Hills' popular novel "The Shuttle Soul" and tells of the strange romance of Marjorie a governor's daughter, and Aziza, a beggar dancing girl of far-off India. How the two lives came together though they lived worlds apart makes an interesting and spectacular drama. Miss Vidor has a chance to display some of the gowns for which her pictures are noted. "Dusk to Dawn" comes to the Parkway direct from the huge Capitol Theater in New York City where it is playing this week. As a special added attraction, Reginald Denny, star of "The Leather Pushers" is showing in a Northwest Mounted Police Story called "Plain Grit." The latest Pathe Review and a Rolin comedy "The Busy Bee" completes the show.

Sunday and Monday Herbert Rawlinson, long a matinee idol, comes again to the screen in a fascinating crook melodrama entitled "Don't Shoot." It is the story of a burglar who is forced to marry a girl after breaking into her apartment. With this as a start the story goes at a swift pace during the unfoldment of the rest of the plot.

Tuesday the United Artists special picture "Carnival" is to be the attraction for three days. It is an intriguing story with all the brilliancy and splendor of Venice behind it.

News Notes From Movieland

We hear that George Fitzmaurice is scheduled to direct Pola Negri when he completes "Kick In."

Louise Lorraine and Dagmar Godowsky have the feminine leads in "The Altar Stairs," with Frank Mayo at Universal.

Billy Bevan, Mack Sennett comedian, is henceforth to appear "straight." That is, he will be allowed to become a matinee idol now. So his P. A. warns, "Rudolph, beware!"

Ralph Graves is working with Marguerite De La Motte in "The [illegible]," a feature now in course of production at the Universal studios.

Allan Dwan, who has just finished directing Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," will wield the megaphone for Rodolph Valentino in his next starring vehicle, "The Spanish Cavalier." Nita Nalda will have the leading feminine role.

OVER in Spain you don't close up the old desk on Saturday and slide into a pair of khaki trousers and a flannel shirt as soon as the old flivver lands you at the farm. Things are not done that way in the land of Moorish castles. In the illustration shown above Rodolph Valentino is dressed in the kind of clothes that every Spaniard with money enough to own a good farm dresses in—even if he is a bullfighter, the way Valentino was in "Blood and Sand," which has been made into a motion picture for Paramount.

The flannel trousers, the gay-colored sash, sheepskin jacket and bandanna are stock, as the automobile dealers say; they're part of the regular equipment.

LA CROSSE—Martin Peterson, 40, was held on a manslaughter charge at Whitehall by a coroner's jury, investigating the death of Miss Helen Gunderson in an automobile accident August 19. Evidence was offered at the inquest in an effort to prove that Peterson, who drove the car, was intoxicated.

National Convention of Conservation Men Next Week

"Three-quarters of a million people in Wisconsin go fishing," said W. E. Barber, chairman of the conservation commission this morning. "We issued 168,00 hunting licenses last year. People in general do not realize the tremendous interest in gun and rod.

A national convention wil open here Wednesday morning with an address of welcome by Gov. Blaine, and Mayor I. M. Kittleson. C. M. Breder, New York, will give a paper on "The Problem of Marine Fish Culture" and John N. Cobb will deliver a lecture on "Safeguarding the Fishes in the Yakima River."

Wednesday afternoon will be given over to an auto trip to the Wisconsin Dells at Kilbourn and Baraboo and boat trips through the Dells. The delegates will have dinner at a Kilbourn hotel and return to Madison later in the evening. Seventy-five to 100 members are expected to attend.

Wharton Denies He Is Playing Dual Labor Role

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Emphatic denial of charges that he is serving not only as a member of the U. S. R. R. Labor Board but also as president of the striking shop crafts, organization was made today by A. O. Wharton, one of the three labor members of the board.

Mr. Wharton made the retort when informed of a despatch saying the charges would be contained in an article in the Sept. 2, issue of the Independent, a New York magazine, quoting another member of the federal arbitration body as saying "the shopmen's strike was engineered from inside the labor board."

Births Decrease As Deaths Gain in U. S.

WASHINGTON — The birth rate is declining and the death rate increasing, according to statistics made public by the census bureau. The birth rate in the state from which comparative figures were available showed an average of 23.3 for each thousand of population in the first three months of 1922 against 25.3 in 1921 while the mortality average in the registration area in the first quarter this year was 13.7 against 12.6 in the same period last year. North Carolina, with 29.2, reported the highest birth rate. The District of Columbia had the highest mortality rate, with 17.6.

Where thousands drink from the public cup, we're sure to mark the death-rate up.

Eddie R. Held Wins Public Links Title

Consistent Drives of 265-290 Yards Wins For Held

TOLEDO, O. — When you can line the ball down the alleys consistently for distances ranging from 265 to 290 yards, and play thirty-ones holes of golf and miss only one putt of under six feet you have a strong attack and an equally strong defense.

Ability to do these things tells the story of the capture of the first American public links championship of the United States Golf association by Eddie R. Held, the 19 year old St. Louis player, who in the thirty-six hole final at the Ottawa park course today defeated Richard Walsh of New York, 6 and 5.

For the next year the big silver trophy donated by James D. Standish of Detroit will repose in the Mound City and while Chicago failed it is satisfactory to record the triumph of our sister city at the other end of the drainage canal.

Fight Monday

Demetral And Bull Dog Nelson Meet in Match Monday

Jimmy Demetral, local wrestler, and "Bull Dog" Nelson, Omaha middleweight, will wrestle here Monday, Labor Day, as part of the Labor Day program at Monona park.

"Bull Dog" Nelson wrestled here this winter with Demetral and lost to the Greek. After the match he made the boast that he could have whipped the Greek if he had not been troubled with injuries to his collar bone.

And of course Jimmy denied Nelson's superiority. And now the two mat men will grapple once again for honors.

Nelson is one of the oldest men still active in the wrestling game and is a hard man to beat because of his scientific battling and his ability to take a terrific amount of punishment. The fact that he wrestled Demetral here some three months ago before his collar bone was healed is sufficient proof of his gameness.

Fight fans who go to Monona park Monday afternoon are bound to be pleased by this match. Jimmy has been working hard for the go and Nelson writes to this paper that he is in the pink.

Jimmy will have to wrestle Monday, and not take a light work out like he did with young Ole Gunderson.

Meyers Meets Prehn Before Bout in Madison

CAMPAIGN, Ill. — That Paul Prehn, wrestling coach at the University of Illinois, and challenger of Johnny Meyers, Chicago, middleweight champion, has wrestled nearly a year under handicaps became known today when he announced he had removed them. It was known that he had a weak ankle as the result of an injury sustained in an exhibition in Chicago.

Prehn also was handicapped by a weak knee. He will be able, in his match with Meyers here Labor day evening, to try body and head scissors and wristlocks when the opportunity arises, instead of being compelled to rely on headlocks and body holds.

Dempsey and Kearns Disgusted, May Leave U. S.

CHICAGO — Unless the unexpected happens and some promoter can stage a match in this country, Jack Dempsey, white heavyweight champion, will go to Europe this fall to defend his title against Georges Carpentier in the spring.

This was the statement made yesterday by Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, who arrived in Chicago from New York. Kearns also said a match with Harry Wills is more remote than ever following Harry's poor exhibition with Tut Jackson in Brooklyn last Tuesday night.

Cobb Still Swings A Mean Bat After 17 Years of .300 Hitting

An unusual picture of a common sight to American league fans. The photographer caught Cobb jujst as he released two extra bats he uses in "warming up" on his way to the plate.

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

Ty Cobb, in his eighteenth season in the big show, is giving American league sluggers, young and old, a run for the batting honors which he already has won twelve times. It is certain that he will hang up a percentage above .300 again—as he has for seventeen campaigns. And all this despite the fact that he has served more than the ordinary span of years in the big show and now has had to carry the managerial duties of the club on his shoulders as he steps daily to the platter.

Can any other player in the game today claim the center of the stage while this Georgia Peach defies time and its toll as he is doing now?

George Sisler stands out as the greatest player of the younger period and school in the game today. Veterans like Tris Speaker and Walter Johnson still rank as lustrous stars in their realms—Speaker as a wonderful fielder and a great manager, and Johnson as king of pitchers. But Cobb's record stands unequaled.

Speth's Have Filled Cards For Week End

Speths Want to Play Middleton Here Saturday —Baraboo on List

The Speth's Clothiers ball team are never satisfied with the number of games they play. They are always looking for battle. Middleton is in their eye now and the Clothiers will not be satisfied until they have played these champs of the Tri-county league.

If negotiations now under way are arranged satisfactorily the Speth's will play the Middleton boys at Kipp field here Saturday afternoon.

Apparently the Clothiers feel that Middleton will afford them nothing more than a practice game, for they go to Middleton the next day, Sunday, to play the Baraboo team. The Baraboo nine are a tough aggregation now with the addition of several of the best Reedsburg players, and they promise to give the local lads a fast run for honors.

Monday, Labor Day, the Speth's journey to Sun Prairie to appear in the semi-windup ball game event of the day when they meet the Middleton team there. The Speth's boys want to feel the Middleton nine out for their ability before hand, and that is why they want to arrange this Saturday's game with them.

Yale Half Miler Sets New World Track Mark

Tom Campbell, Yale half miler who broke into athletic prominence at the University high school, yesterday established a new world's record for 500 meters in a special race against time at Lincoln park speedway. Campbell stepped the distance in 1:03 2-5, which is 2 2-5 seconds faster than the world's record of 1:55 4-5 made by M. Dalvert of France in 1920.

Speaking of house flies, it takes 25 fly eggs, placed end to end, to measure one inch, and a single fly will lay 24 inches of eggs during a summer. Thirty days after the eggs are hatched all daughter flies will imitate their mother. Quick, Watson, the pencil!

By periodic physical examination we catch the flaw before the break.

The female Anopheles, or malaria bearing mosquito must have warm blood to mature her eggs—and she'll fly a mile to get it.

ROUNDY SAYS:

Boxing Fans Still Discussing Mitchell-Tillman Fight; Arguments Heard On Every Street Corner

Big "Jawn" Richards, the football coach, should blow in town any day now. The idea is what is he going to do when he gets here?

He will gaze out on Randall field to some of the poorest material he ever saw in one glance in his whole football coaching.

* * *

Other colleges go and get stars, that I can prove, while Wisconsin will sit tight and wait for the wind to blow them in.

* * *

Out at Wisconsin it is: Be a nice boy now and do not play baseball this summer. Get a job in a cherry orchard and pick dandelions and come back to school clean as the 'Good Lord will let you."

It is no secret that other colleges are out looking for men that can play football, basketball and baseball who were stars in high school—but it is a cinch that no one is out here trying to get any stars to come here. While other colleges are getting away with murder, Wisconsin is out trying to get the boys more prayer-books. Wake up, Wisconsin.

* * *

When you have men like this to carry the ball and not a man on the side lines all year from injuries out of this gang and fail to get the "conference title in 1921," then brother there is something wrong on the good ship Wisconsin. Elliott, Sundt and Williams—and Sundt the best kicker in the west besides.

* * *

There is something wrong. I leave it to the jury. Am I right?

* * *

Look at this kid Crowley from Green Bay high school who will be a half back on Notre Dame this year. Watch him, fans. He will be the best the West has seen for years. What is the idea of him going down there to school?

* * *

Wisconsin had the poorest freshman football team last year that ever strode up and down Randall field.

* * *

A lot of people must take under thought that Richards sure has to buck a lot of things at Wisconsin before he gets a man eligible for his team—as soon as a man becomes to much of a star at Wisconsin it seems that a lot of obstacles are strewn in his way.

Look at Iowa they would not let Devine get away from them they kept him to coach the backfield. And Wisconsin should of kept Elliott to do the same thing.

From a banquet talk last year this is the year that Wisconsin should win the title according to 'Big Jawn'. It looks as if he will have to hold another banquet soon to make another speech for '23, instead of '22.

* * *

I would love to see Wisconsin go out and win the title this year but it will take more material than will be out on Randall field Sept. 15.

* * *

What is the outlook at Madison high school this fall for football! Well they have Frautschi back the only man from last years team and he plays in the band also. So if he sticks to the band the high school will not have a team.

* * *

Middleton and Sun Prairie will resume their battle royal this Sunday at Middleton for the championship of the Tri-Co. league. Last Sunday they played 10 innings to a tie 5 to 5. And two weeks ago they played 15 innings 2 to 1. Sun Prairie winning and tieing for first place.

* * *

Both teams have been dishing up big league ball and no doubt the largest crowd that ever saw a ball game in Middleton next Sunday will be on hand as these two team you can figure will fight to the last for a run. Every player will carry his own gun.

* * *

Big Hein the Sun Prairie player was beaned by a fast ball last Sunday and was in a rather hard way—but the big boy is raring to get a hold of a war club this Sunday and tear the cover off the ball. The roads are fine to Middleton and a large crowd from here will journey to the "beerless city."

* * *

Schneider the slab artist will bend them over for Middleton they will bet any thing in Middleton that this boy can beat the Sun Prairie team pitching in a rocking chair. While Sun Prairie say's why didn't he do it on the last two times—they claim that Schneider is duck soup for them.

* * *

The game last Sunday between them was called for what in the tenth inning? I do not think that it ever occurred before in baseball the game was called off after 5 p. m. to the "sun".

* * *

The sun was shining direct in to the batters eyes and Hein was hit on the head with a ball that he could not see and other batters were in danger all the same way at least two more just got missed by a hair with a bean ball. So up steps umpire Smiley Smith in front of the crowd after 5 o'cock and say's "the game is called off due to the sun."

History Of Davis Cup is Fascinating

Three Nations Have Held Title Trophy; U. S. Once

NEW YORK—In all the anals of sport there is no more colorful story than that weaved about the Davis Cup, the symbol that for a fifth of a century has meant world-wide supremacy in team tennis play for the nation that held it.

In no other branch of athletic endeavor have men gone to as much effort to win, nor travelled so far for the sporting chance of pitting their ability against each other with no reward except the red-blooded fellow's satisfaction in meeting an opponent in fair game and doing his best for the honor of his nation.

Baseball has its world series; pugilism boasts girdles of belts; golf has its American and British open championships, polo has its international cup matches and so has yachting, but in none of these are as man countries entered and interested, trying year after year, often against hopeless odds, as in Davis Cup tennis.

Since the cup was donated in 1900 by Dwight F. Davis, of Washington, D. C., now a vice-president of the United States Lawn Tennis association three countries have held it, the United States, British Isles and Australia, though as many as 13 have contested for it in one year. Australia has kept it longest, winning and defending it six times, America and Great Britain five times ecah.

The original idea was a contest between the United States and Great Britain. He started negotiations in 1897 and British players came here that year, but the first cup contest was not held until 1900.

The first matches were played at the Longwood Cricket Club, near Boston, Mr. Davis and M. D. Whitman, representing this country and easily defeating A. W. Gore and E. D. Black, of England. The contest was unsatisfactory since the courts were ant-eaten and uneven, the net was not hung or stretched properly and the British players were unused to the American ball.

However, England challenged again in 1901 but later could not organize a representative time and waited until the next year to come to America. They lost but returned here in 1903 with the famous Doherty Brothers and won easily, losing only one of five matches and that by a technical default.

HIS NAME'S VILLA, BUT HE DOESN'T FIGHT THEN RUN

Pancho Villa in ring pose.

This dark-skinned Filipino lad with the Mexican moniker, Pancho Villa, is the latest ring sensation. His style has caused some critics to dub him a second "Griffo." Villa fought Frankie Genaro, Abe Goldstein and several other good fly and bantamweights and now looms as the logical man to meet Joe Lynch.

Tiny Filipino Lad Crowds Dempsey Off News Page

By Norman E. Brown.

SOMEBODY wrote a popular ditty once about "The Argentines, the Portugese, The Armenians and the Greeks." The ballet recited how they were rapidly acquiring a deed in fee simple to the whole darned U. S.

Now the facetious author might add the Philippines to the list. For the Pacific Islands have sent to the states a little man who overnight has stepped into the fistic spotlight and has even crowded Jack Dempsey off the boxing stage despite the fact that the newcomer is just a little flyweight.

This latest sensation is Pancho Villa. This story isn't a technical one about his measurements or chances for victory in his coming bouts. His history is a chapter by itself.

Villa grew up—to his present diminutive size—shining shoes on the streets of Manila. America, to him, was represented by the U. S. soldiers roaming about the islands. He idolized the uniformed men and watched them at manouvers and play—when his shining duties didn't call. Their skill at boxing appealed to him.

He tried to imitate them when any disputes over territorial rights in the bootblacking field arose and it is said that he acquired his only cauliflower (sorely bruised) ear in one of those preliminary bouts.

Some of the khaki-clad boys took a liking to him and taught him the game. It is said that Francisco Villa finally became interested in the lad and adopted him—hence the lad's ring name of Pancho Villa.

How It Happened

Mendez at the time was recognized as the champion bantamweight of Australia. English promoters, seeking an opponent for their idol, Jimmy Wilde, arranged to have Mendez go to London to meet him. Mendez left Australia full of hope. When a Manila promoter suggested that he give Villa a chance to show his class in an exhibition bout while Mendez stopped in the Philippine center enroute to London Mendez agreed. Villa knocked Mendez out in the fourth round. And the blow that floored the Australian also knocked him out of his match with Wilde. For London had no desire to see Wilde fight a man who had been dropped by an unknown bootblack.

Then New York, the mecca of all foreign fighters, beckoned to Pancho.

Arriving in the metropolis he asked of the promoters for bouts. "Put me up against some of the good boys. If I can't fight I want to know it so that I can go home again," he said.

Taking him at his word the promoters sent him against such clever little fellows as Abe Goldstein, Johnny Hepburn, Frankie Genaro, and others. And Villa showed in each bout that his knockout of Mendez was not a fluke. His quiet manner ouside the ring, his earnest, aggresive style inside the ropes and his general technique appealed to the fans.

Now Villa is being talked of as the right boy to pit against Joe Lynch, bantamweight champ, or at least Johnny Buff, the flyweight champion.

Which is quite a sudden rise for the little dark-skinned, oriental-eyed chap, you will admit.

Gaints Lose Two Straight To Superbas

Dodgers Knock Barnes Out of Box And Win, 7-4

BROOKLYN, N. Y. — Brooklyn made it two straight from the National league leaders today, winning 7 to 4, in a hard hitting game. The Dodgers knocked Jesse Barnes out of the box in the third inning, and the Giants handed Sherry Smith, the same dose in the seventh. Mamaux, who relieved Smith, retired the Giants without a hit in the last three innings.

SOX WIN.

DETROIT, Mich. —A White Sox attack that was as versatile as it was fierce, transformed Cobb's Tygers into a bunch of suckers today and the Chicagoans made a sweep of the three games series, 10 to 1. Twenty-one hits did the business, whereas the local clout manufacturers could collect only six off the asserted offerings of Red Faber.

YANKS COP

NEW YORK — The New York Americans bunched extra base hits on Mogridge early in today's game and made it three straight from Washington, 3 to 1. Bush won his twenty-second game of the season. He was hit hard at times, but was brilliantly supported.

BRAVES BEST

BOSTON, Mass. — Boston took both games from Philadelphia today, 5 to 4 and 7 to 2. Roser's single to left off Meadows in the eighth inning of the first game scored two runs, and in the ninth he went back to the wall and pulled down Pinch Hitter Peters' terrific drive for the concluding out.

BEAT BROWNS

CLEVELAND, O. — Cleveland rallied in the ninth today, scoring five runs on a base on balls, a wild throw, and five hits, and defeated St. Louis, 7 to 6. Seven double plays cut down the scores.

RED SOX UP

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — George Burns' home run in the third with two on base gave Boston a 3 to 0 victory over Philadelphia yesterday afternoon. The game was called while Boston was at bat in the sixth inning, when a heavy shower swept over Shibe park. It was the third game of the series won by a home run.

News of the Markets

Report for September 1, 1922

Wheat Affected By Reparations Delay Ruling

CHICAGO — Decision of the reparations commission to grant Germany a respite on the payments due for the balance of 1922 had a strong influence on the wheat market here today. Receipts of wheat here were estimated at 120 cars and deliveries on September contracts this morning were only 15,000 bushels.

The opening which ranged from ⅝ cents to 1¼ cent higher, Sept. $1@1.00⅝ and Dec. 1.01⅛@¾ was followed by a slight general setback and then something of a rally.

Improvement on the European situation also gave firmness to corn. After starting unchanged to ⅝c advance Sept 59½@⅝ the market scored additional advances all around.

Oats were ⅛ to ⅜ cents higher at the start Sept. 31¾ and then underwent additional gains.

Provisions were weak.

CHEESE MARKET.

CHICAGO — The cheese market ruled steady Thursday, with a little unsettled undertone in some quarters. There was a satisfactory trade on small blocks of cheese but real wholesale demand lacked spirit. There seemed to be little or no real pressure to push sales, probably because stocks on dealers' floors were not burdensome and but little new stock was being purchased.

Oil and Steel Display Gain on Wall Street

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK — A brisk demand for oils and equipments most of which registered gains of 1 to 2 points, featured the irregular opening of today's stock market. Baldwin and Pullman broke through to new high records for the year as did American Can and Allied Chemicals. Mexican Petroleum continued its rise of yesterday while, demand Houston, Pacific and Producers and Refiners each advanced a point or more. U. S. Steel, approached within striking distance of its high of the year. Republic and Midvale Steels were reactionary on the overnight announcement that their proposed merger with the Inland company was illegal. Consolidated Gas broke 4 points in response to the order of the public service commission cutting the rate from $1.25 to $1.15 a thousand cubic feet and compelling adoption of the British thermal unit standard. Union and Canadian Pacific each selling ex-dividend, registered gains of a point or more in early dealings.

While visiting in Europe a year ago Mr. Jacobson, who is a musisian and owner of a music emporium at 12638 Milwaukee avenue in the big city, made an airplane trip from Paris to London in two and a half hours, along with two other hap. He was born in Madagascar and up to the age of 12 years was a playmate of the native children and at that time he was sent to Christiana, where he graduated from the university and came to America 22 years ago. His father was a Lutheran missionary in Madagascar, at a period when the people were gradually induced to adopt civilized ways of living. Mr. Jacobson is widely known among the Scandinavian people in America. It is expected that he will return for another outing at Kegonsa next season.

A red-headed beauty almost made a cripple out of W. J. Murphy here and it's a safe bet that the next time he argues with a woman he will avoid the titian haired species. Murphy and the girl got into an argument over paying for a small purchase in a drug store. Murphy lifted his arm. Police saw him when Miss Dunning dragged him into the police station by the collar after the fray.

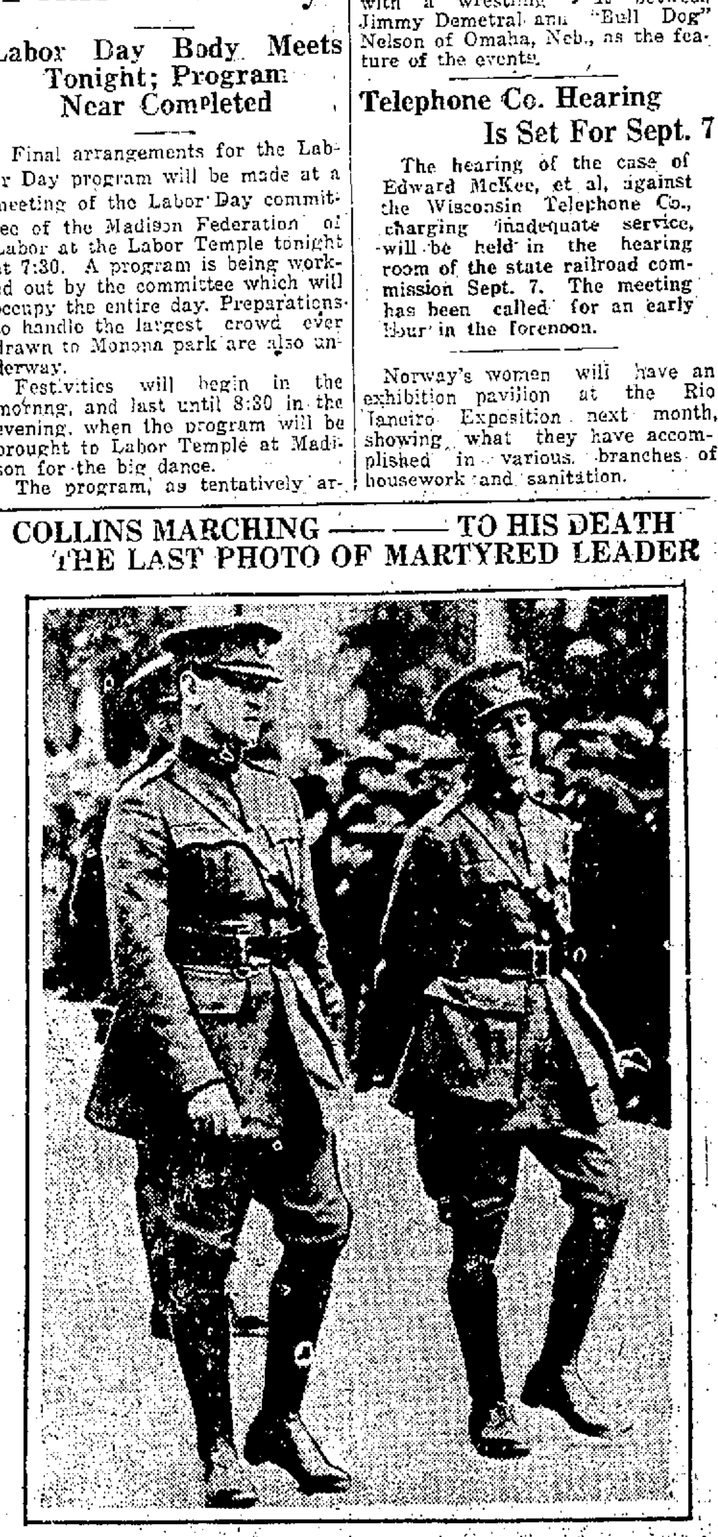
COLLINS MARCHING — — TO HIS DEATH THE LAST PHOTO OF MARTYRED LEADER



Gen. Michael Collins, left, and General Mulcahy, leading the funeral procession of Arthur Griffith to Glasnevin cemetery.

Was Michael Collins, slain commander of the Irish Free State forces, marked for death as he marched, grief stricken, at the head of the procession which bore Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, to his grave a few days before Collins' death? Collins was shot from ambush by rebel forces.

Stoughton Department

C. J. ROLLIS, Editor

Office First Floor, 102 East Main Street. Telephone 884 W.

STOUGHTON — Stoughton people are hustling for a country club, with a club house and the other accompaniments, such as a bathing beach and judging from the results up to yesterday noon there is not a lazy man on the job. One hundred responsible men had signed the agreement to take at least one share, which are placed at a hundred dollars each. The Thore Olson heirs, from whom the land is acquired were reluctant at first to enter into an agreement for dividing the handsome homestead, but were finally pursuaded. Enough money has already been guaranteed to make the enterprise a go. The Stoughton band turned out at noon yesterday and helped the committee in stirring up enthusiasm for the country club.

As a social center at which our townspeople can mingle with those who are enjoying camp life at Lake Kegonsa, the proposed club house presents many pleasing possibilities. Nor will enjoyment of the country club grounds—exclusive of the club house,—be confined to those who play golf. There will be ample room for tennis courts, and with upwards of 250 feet of frontage on the lake, it is safe to say that there will be ample bathing facilities for all who wish to make use of them."

"It is the intention to erect a commodious club house which will be arranged in such a way that large or small parties can be accommodated, and it is the idea to have meals served for members and their guests; in short, all of the privileges ordinarily enjoyed by members of country clubs will be at the disposal of the local people and the campers who become members of the contemplated club."

Wedded At Stoughton

Cards received by friends last evening told that Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Patterson announced the marriage of their daughter, Hazel Morencie, to Mr. Herbert Townsend Bigelow at Stoughton, Wis. At home after the first of October at 613 Hamilton street, Stoughton, Wis. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James A. Davidson, former pastor of the First Congregational church, Stoughton, now connected with the Atlanta, Georgia university.

Precisely at 6:30 o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Harry Waterman, of Chicago, the bridal couple, accompanied by Lucia Law, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Law, of Madison, as ring bearer, took their places amid a perfect wealth of flowers, where the service was pronounced which made them husband and wife. The ring service was used.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white Georgette crepe over white satin, and carried a shower bouquet of pink Ophelia roses and swansonia.

Following the ceremony and congratulations, Mrs. Harry Waterman favored the company with a whistling solo and an encore, accompanying herself at the piano.

A three-course wedding repast was served, covers being laid for about forty-five guests.

After the wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow motored with the bride's brother, Ray Patteson, and wife, to Madison where they took the Northwestern train for Chicago where they will spend their honeymoon.

The color scheme used in decorating were gold and blue, the gold dominating in the parlor decorations, with an abundance of gracefully winding smilax prevailing in the table appointments. In addition to the artisically arranged profusion of gold and blue used in the parlor decorations, there were large bouquets of asters and marigolds in evidence.

The Discomfiture of Mr. Paulsen

WE are not surprised that Martin R. Paulsen, the stalwart candidate for secretary of state, rushed into print yesterday, charging "malicious misrepresentation" and "campaign falsehoods" following the publishing of a letter which Mr. Paulsen wrote to a soldier at Resthaven.

We can readily understand Mr. Paulsen's discomfiture. His letter tells eloquently how much of the "loyalty" opposition to Senator La Follette has been manufactured in this state. "We should be glad to make it worth your time," said Mr. Paulsen to Mr. George at the Resthaven hospital. That is—if Mr. George would agree to stir up opposition to Senator La Follette among the soldiers at Resthaven, Mr. Paulsen would be "glad to make it worth your time".

In his statement in reply to the revelations, Mr. Paulsen says that the Wisconsin Loyalty League spent less than $100 in the time that it was in existence. Will Mr. Paulsen tell the people of Wisconsin who has paid for the 12-page pamphlet entitled "Lest We Forget" which was "Issued under the direction and authority of the Wisconsin Loyalty League, Madison, Wisconsin, Martin R. Paulsen, chairman, E. W. Chapleau, secretary." This pamphlet was an attack on Senator La Follette. It has been circulated profusely in every part of Wisconsin.

Let Mr. Paulsen, if he dares, tell who paid for the printing and the circularization of this pamphlet. Mr. Paulsen has served one good purpose in this campaign. He has revealed to the people of Wisconsin hidden influences that have been at work to manufacture the "loyalty" campaign against Senator La Follette.

For J. C. Hanson

WHEN the farmers in the eastern part of Dane county vote for a representative in the state legislature next Tuesday, they can do no better than to return to his old post in the assembly, James C. Hanson.

Mr. Hanson has been a faithful friend of the farmer in the several sessions that he has been a member of the assembly. His record is one of service to the people. When measures are up affecting the public welfare, there is never any doubt about Mr. Hanson's vote.

Mr. Hanson should be nominated with Mr Sachtjen and Mr. Grimstad in the other two districts in order to keep old Dane county solidly under the banner of progress, as it has been for several years. Dane county has three representatives in the assembly and Dane county should have a solid progressive delegation.

Do Not Be Fooled

IN the closing days of the campaign, the interests back of the Committee of 44 are pulling every wire in behalf of Ganfield and Morgan.

The people of the state should scan carefully every political maneuver between now and primary day. The Committee of 44 and its candidates are flooding the mails with all kinds of literature. Big ads are appearing in the newspapers. Advertising seeking to confuse the voter in the final days of the campaign is appearing throughout the state. In dry counties, the Committee of 44 tells the people that Progressive candidates are wet and in wet counties they tell the people that Progressive candidates are dry. Big business always seeks to divide and to confuse the people.

The Progressives of Wisconsin should not be fooled. Vote for Blaine for governor, Comings for lieutenant governor, Zimmerman for secretary of state, Levitan for state treasurer, Ekern for attorney general and La Follette for United States senator.

Men or Money—Which?

Oustanding Issue of This Campaign is Privilege on One Side and The People on The Other; Which Shall Rule

NEXT Tuesday, the men and women of this great commonwealth will once more decide:

"Which shall rule—wealth or man; which shall lead—money or intellect; who shall fill public stations—educated and patriotic free men, or the feudal serfs of corporate capital?"

* * *

TWO years ago, The Capital Times closed the campaign with an editorial entitled:

"Which shall rule; men or money?"

This is the last issue in which The Capital Times will be able to reach all of its 17,000 readers before primary day. Monday is a legal holiday and on Tuesday, the men and women of Wisconsin will be on their way to the polls to decide the issues that have been raised in this campaign.

ABOUT 50 years ago, one of the greatest men that ever sat on the Wisconsin bench, Chief Justice Edward G. Ryan, gave voice to these words in an address to a graduating class of the Wisconsin law school:

"There is looming up a new and dark power. I cannot dwell upon the signs and shocking omens of its advent. The accumulation of individual wealth seems to be greater than it ever has been since the downfall of the Roman Empire. The enterprises of the country are aggregating vast corporate combinations of unexampled capital, boldly marching, not for economic conquest only, but for political power. For the first time in our politics, money is taking the field as an organized power. Already, here at home, one great corporation has trifled with the sovereign power, and insulted the state. There is grave fear that it, and its great rival, have confederated to make partition of the state and share it as spoils. The question will arise, and arise in your day, though perhaps not fully in mine, 'Which shall rule—Wealth or man; which shall lead—money or intellect; who shall fill public stations—educated and patriotic free men, or the feudal serfs of corporate capital?'"

A PROPHESY uttered 50 years ago,—could any words of man better fit the present campaign in Wisconsin?

Stripped of all the camouflage and deceit and confusion and misrepresentation, there is but one outstanding issue in Wisconsin today. That question is:

Shall government in Wisconsin be placed in the hands of men who will serve the people or shall we place in the public stations men who will be the serfs of organized capital?

All other issues fade into insignificance when compared to this vital question.

THE people of Wisconsin have witnessed another campaign in which an attempt has been made to debauch a state by the use of money. The close of this campaign is witnessing expenditures unparalleled in this state. Evidences are at hand that at least $100,000 have been spent in the last two weeks in behalf of the candidates carrying the banner of privilege and reaction. Never has there been such a brazen attempt to win a political contest by the use of money.

And why?

A Constitutional League raises a barrel of $230,000 to defeat Senator La Follette and Governor Blaine. What is a mere matter of $230,000 to interests that can make millions by controlling government? What is a contribution of $5,000 to a Constitutional League, if the contributor can obtain immunities and privileges and escape burdens that mount into the hundreds of thousands? There is a struggle for control in government today on the part of interests that do not want to carry their fair share of burdens of government.

SENATOR La Follette at Washington and Governor Blaine in Wisconsin have sought to establish government that will function for the many rather than for the interests of the few. They do not favor special privileges at the expense of the masses. Just as Senator La Follette is hated by the privilege seekers at Washington, so is Governor Blaine hated by the privilege seekers in Wisconsin. For that reason, American Constitutional leagues and a Committee of 44 are organized to encompass the defeat of these men.

Organized wealth always seeks to defeat the opposition by any means available. It seeks to bring forth false issues. It seeks to confuse the voters. Where its purpose will be served, it plays on passion and prejudice and racial feelings. It seeks to throw dust in order to take the attention of the people from the real issues to others that are unimportant.

THE people of Wisconsin will have an opportunity next Tuesday to show where they stand. After all the excitement of a campaign; after all the confusion that has been raised in attempts to fool; after all the misrepresentation and appeal to passion and prejudice, there is but one outstanding question for the people of Wisconsin to decide next Tuesday:

"Which shall rule—wealth or man; which shall lead—money or intellect; who shall fill public stations—educated and patriotic free men, or the feudal serfs of corporate capital?"

Mrs. Jones was entertaining some of her son's little friends. "Willie," she said, addressing a six-year-old who was enjoying a plate of cold beef, "are you sure you can cut your own meat?"

The child, who was making desperate efforts with his knife and fork, replied:

"Yes, thanks. I've often had it as tough as this at home."—The Christian Evangelist.

THE FACTS AT WAUPACA MEETING

[Letter sent to Waupaca Post by Walter D. Corrigan, Milwaukee, Wis.]—My attention has just been called to an article published in The Milwaukee Sentinel, under date of August 10, 1922. I did not see the article before because I have been spending a great deal of time campaigning for the La Follette-Blaine Progressive Republican ticket and therefore to sustain the rights of human beings in this great cause so I have had little time to keep track of the falsehoods published in the Milwaukee Sentinel.

The article in question pretends to state in its headline that at the time I spoke at Waupaca, I was silenced by some war veteran. I heard before I left Waupaca, that after I had finished my address to the very kind and generous crowd, who greeted me there, that while I was shaking hands with a hundred or more people, who gathered about the stairway at the foot of the grandstand, someone had spoken a few words on the other side of the grandstand, but I did not learn what was said.

I did not know that anything was going on or that anything of that kind had gone on until afterwards and then I did not know what it was. There was no interruption of the kind, as printed in The Sentinel, during my speech. The Sentinel says, "The crowd drowned Corrigan's efforts to reply." I certainly could not have made an effort to reply to something I did not hear and I know there was no such interruption during my speech. The only interruption during my speech was a "hurrah for Debs," to which I made reply which is unnecessary to repeat here. I am sure the people of Waupaca would have been glad to have heard me reply to the statement of the soldier boy, if he in fact made the statement quoted in The Sentinel. Indeed, I would have been glad to have had him brought the subject up during my speech. I am always entirely willing to have proper interruptions, by questions during addresses, for it sometimes brings out clearly some very important matters which I may overlook. A speaker who is speaking off-hand as I do, often overlooks some points of importance. I may make a point in one speech and overlook it in the next. I sincerely believe that I would have been helpful to Mr. Nelson and to the audience as well, had this subject been brought up, and I had an opportunity to know what he had to say on that occasion, if he in fact spoke as quoted. The Sentinel quotes him as saying in substance, "That he was in charge of prisoners while in service abroad and that the prisoners said that speeches made by La Follette were being circulated in Germany as propaganda to bolster the morale of the soldiers and the people of Germany. This statement by Mr. Nelson, if it is correctly quoted, is absolutely true, BUT THE FURTHER VERY SIGNIFICANT FACT IS TRUE, that the speech of La Follette which was circulated in Germany was the speech made at St. Paul, as misquoted and misreported by the Associated Press.

Senator La Follette said in the St. Paul speech: "We had grievances against Germany. Serious grievances." The Associated Press misreported the speech by introducing the word "no" into the sentence so it was made to read and it was reported to the world that La Follette said, "We had no grievances against Germany."

The Associated Press under threat of libel suit apologized to La Follette through the press of the country and admitted that they had done him a great wrong. All of the stenographic reports of the St. Paul speech were in accord that the word "no" was not used. The context of the speech demonstrated that the word "no" could not have been used. The entire speech contained many statements of our "just grievances" against Germany. This St. Paul speech as misreported by the Associated Press was circulated all over this country and all over the world in an effort to annihilate La Follette. The Germans picked it up as propaganda and published it in their language for the purpose of bolstering the morale of their army and their people. It is my humble judgment that no fair American citizen could expect the Germans to have done otherwise on the authority of the Associated Press. At the same time, I do not think any fair American citizen can justly criticize La Follette, or condemn him, because the Germans circulated the speech as misquoted and misreported by the Associated Press.

It is very humiliating to have it reported and published that I was silenced on a matter so simple as this, but long service in the ranks, fighting for human rights against the worshippers of dollars has taught me that I must expect abuse and misrepresentation and some humiliation. The great satisfaction I have from this incident, however, is that the people of Waupaca must have read this article, and those who read it were thereby advised that the Milwaukee Sentinel cannot be depended upon to convey the truth with respect to anything. After all, this incident may have the helpful effect of destroying any possible local influence which other Sentinel articles might otherwise unfortunately have on the people of Waupaca.

It has always been a great satisfaction to speak in Waupaca, and in the other places in central Wisconsin, where I have for years enjoyed personal friendships, which reach beyond party and factional lines. I have always tried to fight for this great cause with facts and arguments and to keep my political philosophy entirely disassociated from personalities. My political philosophy is based entirely on the great fundamental principles which are the foundation of American democracy. I standardize every thought and every act in life to those great principles which have meant so much to the people of this country and state and which in time must surely make this world a better place for human beings to live.

My only object in campaigning is to serve these principles and to do so is to serve my party and my country and humanity. I love human beings and I respect the inherent human rights more than I do money. I was born just that way and brought up that way and I cannot help being that way. I suppose those who think in the standards of dollars and believe dollars are paramount to human rights and human beings are just as honest about it as I am. That being so, there is no need to indulge in personalities and in my humble judgment there is no need of falsehood.

I do not want you to draw the inference that I think the Waupaca audience was unkind to me in any way for at the conclusion of my address there, I thanked the audience for kindness and generous attention that they had given me and I was sincere about it. I felt at the time that I had never addressed a more attentive or more responsive audience. Whether they all agreed with me or not, it seemed to me the entire audience had treated me with great respect. I am at a loss to know what good purpose it served to represent otherwise.

If you are acquainted with this Mr. Nelson, I will be glad to have you show this to him. The men who so willingly fought "to make the world safe for democracy," should certainly be found fighting now for the cause of real democracy in the state and nation. The best friend the soldier boys had during the war was La Follette and he is their best friend now, but above that he is for all humanity.—Walter D. Corrigan, Milwaukee, Wis.

USING THE NAME OF THE UNIVERSITY

[An open letter to the "Executive Committee" of the "Paulsen-For-Secretary Club."]

This morning's mail favored me with a letter signed by Mr. C. F. Dull, Secretary of the Executive Committee, written on stationary headed, "The University of Wisconsin, Paulsen-For-Secretary Club."

In the course of this letter you state: "Mr. Paulsen is a definite force against socialism and radicalism of all kinds,—he is representative of the faculty and student body of the University. A vote for him and for the ticket above will be a vote for the welfare of our state and our university. Let us, the student body of the University, get our shoulder behind the wheel and demonstrate our interest in the welfare of our state."

I do not know who appointed you gentlemen to this "executive committee"; neither do I profess to know who appointed you to speak for the faculty and student body of the University. I would be very interested to know by whose authority you use the "University of Wisconsin" in your letter head. You have been no doubt duly elected to the "Executive Committee of this University organization, and act with due authority. But you will allow me to make a few comments on the letter which you were good enough to send to me.

When sectarian, private institutions wield their influence in the interest of wealth and privilege, I conceive that it is legitimate and good policy for them to do so, for wealth and privilege are the sources of their endowments, and contribute to the upkeep of these institutions. But when a great state institution like the University of Wisconsin, created and supported by the taxes levied on the commonwealth, made up overwhelmingly of farmers, workers, and poorer classes, lends its name and its aid to a faction, opposed by a great majority of farmer organizations, labor unions, and common people, I think it time to call a halt.

I ask of you, who appointed or elected you to speak for the University; who empowered you to state in the interest of the faculty and students of this institution, that the ticket headed by Ganfield and Morgan has the interest of the University of Wisconsin more at heart than the ticket led by La Follette and Blaine? And who finances your noble efforts in thus instructing the students of the university how to vote?

Have you gentlemen the audacity to assert that any group of candidates in the present primary campaign has the welfare of our University more at heart than the ticket headed by the great alumnus the University of Wisconsin has ever produced, Robert Marion La Follette? Our state institution was created to serve the great mass of the citizens of the state. What individual in national or state life has the interest of the masses more at heart than he? To what other individual in the nation do the toiling masses look with greater gratitude and more esteem than to him? You insult the intelligence of the majority of the voters in this state when you imply that their choice in the United States Senate for the past decade and longer is the enemy of their state and of their University!

"What other act could arouse more hostility on the part of the people against their University, than the broadcasting of this letter, sent out by a group professing to represent the faculty and student body? Such efforts tend to arouse suspicion among the people who support the University with their taxes. And with good reason. They do not question that Robert M. La Follette has consistently worked for their welfare," and when the University lends its influence to defeat him, it requires no subtle reasoning to conclude that the University of Wisconsin is lending its influence to reaction as opposed to the interests of the people.

The record and achievements of the progressive element in the state is an open book; and the measures which the same progressives under the leadership of La Follette and Blaine propose to enact into law are specific, and well known. Is there anything in the past record or in the proposed legislation of these La Follette progressives, inimical to our state, and to our University? What definite proposals, gentlemen of the "Executive Committee," for the welfare of the state and of the University, are advocated by "Paulsen's running mates." Besides numerous platitudes and vague generalities what definite proposals are embodied in the Paulsen-Morgan-Ganfield platform and speeches for the welfare of the state and its university?

I do not believe that many of the students of the university will lend their aid in sending a mediocre character to the national senate in preference to the present incumbent, "Fighting Bob." Neither do I think that the progressive element need fear much opposition from students of the University of Wisconsin.

And in conclusion, gentlemen, I beg of you not to use the name of the great University of Wisconsin, and its prestige, in fighting progress, and encouraging reaction.—L. K. Class of 1922.

"ON WISCONSIN"

[To the Editor]—Great Britain has her "Rock of Gibraltar" and it's not for sale. San Francisco has its "Golden Gate" and it's not for sale. The State of Wisconsin has its "Robert M. La Follette" and he is not for sale. All three stand for protection, and Bob La Follette is one of the best and safest guards any State ever had.

He has spent 25 years of his life as one of the hardest workers in this State, fighting for the rights of the common people. He has made every effort possible to head off crooked politics and graft, sacrificed the best part of his life for that purpose, and still there are thousands of voters in this State who have gained by his hard work, who will go to the polls September 5th and sheepishly vote for his opponent, a man who six months ago was not known by one one thousandth per cent of the population of this State; who came here from another State to run for Senator against the greatest statesman of the present day.

Thanks to the Committee of Forty-Four and its thousands of dollars for propaganda, he is rather well known now as a Reverend, a Doctor, a College Professor, etc. But in all of their political propaganda printed in every daily paper in this state, have you ever heard of a recommend from his home town? I don't think you have. I haven't. If La Follette was not a fit statesman to represent us, we don't need to send to Kentucky or any other state for one, for there are hundreds of good, honest business men and politicians who can pilot us through six more years just as well as the Professor from Kentucky, or better and a "home product." Think it over voters of Wisconsin. It is only a large, high-priced political windstorm sweeping this State, put through by the Committee of Forty-four. Thirty days from this date Rev. Ganfield's name will be so far in oblivion that if his name is mentioned at some public function, we will not remember whether he was running for the nomination for Senator or Village Poundmaster. Mr. La Follette will be nominated and re-elected our next Senator by a large majority, but it should be unanimous. His campaign in this State ought to be a summer vacation and a visit amongst his supporters instead of having to fight day and night for re-election, simply because a large bunch of voters listen to a lot of that propaganda that works like dope to a drug addict.

Abraham Lincoln said God must have loved the "common people" for he created so many of them, and Bob La Follette is giving away the best part of his life to save that same class of people from slavery and gun fodder for those that fight for greed. When you find one "overseas" soldier that votes against La Follette you will find five hundred who will vote for him. They know whether La Follette was right or not on his stand on the late war. La Follette's stand against the Standard Oil Company ought to elect him. Thanks to the Wisconsin Primaries we have not got two Committee of Forty-Four tickets to choose from; our State is the most progressive State in the Union today. Other States are following up with their progressive laws a few at a time, but we lead them all. Who is responsible for it? The voters, the primaries and Bob La Follette and the progressive platform.

Do we want to fall in a rut? This coming election will decide and it is up to you. In this State there is a Prohibition ticket to vote for September 5th. Do you see the Anti-Saloon League president and his flock spreading propaganda for the Prohibition ticket? No, instead they are throwing their support to the Forty-Four ticket and some people wonder why. There are a group of men in Washington, D. C., who could tell you. I am proud to know that I can go to the polls and vote for our one honest and faithful Senator and his progressive ticket. Are you?—Emery W. Sivley, Stevens, Point, Wis.

FROM SHELL LAKE, WIS.

[To the Editor]—You will notice by my subscription that I am one of your Early Subscribers, not because your paper was cheap in price, but because it was the very paper I have been looking for. It gives facts. I have handed out my papers after reading them and urged others to subscribe as you surely deserve support of every farmer and laboring man.

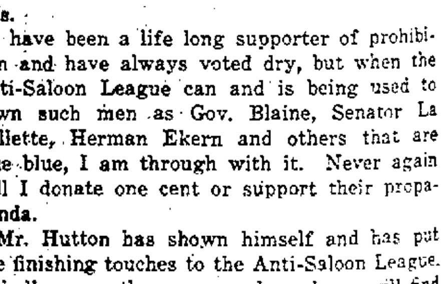
Your editorials have always been read with great interest and especially the past six weeks. Shell Lake is a strong Old Guard holdout but Blaine and La Follette will get a strong pull this year here.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I sent to the Anti-Saloon League today. Also sample of literature they are flooding the country with. Believe it would be well to make mention of it, as a good many will be misled by their propaganda. I would like to see The Capital Times in every farm home in Washburn Co.—G. J. Sauer, Shell Lake, Wis.

[To the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League]—Your letter asking donations to nominate such men as Morgan for Governor, W. A. Ganfield for Senator and some others that are using the Anti-Saloon League for their personal gain does not deserve the support of its members.

I have been a life long supporter of prohibition and have always voted dry, but when the Anti-Saloon League can and is being used to down such men as Gov. Blaine, Senator La Follette, Herman Ekern and others that are true blue, I am through with it. Never again will I donate one cent or support their propaganda.

Mr. Hutton has shown himself and has put the finishing touches to the Anti-Saloon League. I shall oppose the propaganda and you will find the people have their eyes opened.—G. J. Sauer, Shell Lake, Wis.



THE PARADE OF THE YEARS

Slowly the years in gay parade march by
  Viewed by the men and women in a throng.
  I stand among them as they pass along
Seeking, as they, some pleasure new to spy,
A tinseled hour to hold my eager eye,
  A minstrel evening with his merry song,
  Perchance the waxen figure of a wrong
Shall stalk the street of life and leave a sigh.

Still, as a child intent on novel things,
  I watch the hours and days and weeks pass on,
Blessed with the joy the brilliant moment brings
  Frightened by all of grief I look upon,
Yet finding always some sweet charm which clings
  Some wonder day to treasure when it's gone.
